Poll Tax Bill Faces Crucial Senate Test This Week

Republicans Base Hopes for Passage On Wearing Out Foes, or Cloture

A test of strength this week should determine whether the antipoll tax bill or any other civil rights legislation can clear the Senate this session.

On one side are the leaders of the Republican majority. On the other are 21 determined and talkative Southern opponents of the House-approved poll tax measure.

With an "educational" campaign that bore the earmarks of a developing filibuster, the Southerners staved off last week the Republicans' effort to call the bill up for Senate action.

The GOP leaders face a tough choice in trying to bring it up for a vote.

They could keep the Senate in continuous day-and-night session in hope of wearing out the opposition.

No Cloture on a Motion

Or they might try to cut off debate by invoking the cloture rule. However, it takes a two-thirds majority to put the debate-limiting rule into effect, and parliamentarians have held that it applies only to bills and resolutions which are before the Senate, and not to motions.

The actual business before the Senate since last Thursday has been a motion by Senator Wherry of Nebraska, the acting Republican floor leader, to call up the antipoll tax bill.

Both Wherry and Senator Taft, Republican policy chief, told a reporter they favor trying for cloture, but they were not disclosing their plans in advance.

"We may file a petition Monday or Tuesday," Wherry said. "Once a petition is filed there is no point to extra night sessions."

Process Involves Delays

Sixteen senators must file a formal petition to invoke a vote on cloture. After the petition is filed, the vote on applying the rule is delayed until the second day.

Any effort to break the precedent and apply the rule to a motion undoubtedly would be challenged by the Southerners. A ruling by the chair to that effect would be appealed. And the appeal might lead to another circle of debate for days on end.

Taft already has announced that the Republicans want to adjourn the special session next Saturday, August 7, or by August 14 at the latest. He also said he wanted action on the poll tax by Wednesday. That would entail filing a cloture petition today.

Meanwhile President Truman's scorecard for the first week of the special session was filled with blank spaces.

HCL Hearings to Continue

Both Senate and House Banking Committees resume their study of Administration plans for reducing the high cost of living at open hearings today.

Paul Fortier, former OPA boss, is due to appear before Senators for a replay of his testimony before the House group last week.

Governor Forces Accord Ending Univis Walkout

Dayton, Ohio, Aug. 1 (AP)—Gov. Thomas J. Herbert of Ohio forced an agreement today ending the strike-forc 88-day-old Univis Lens Co. strike.

The company and union agreed that within the next two or three days all workers could return without discrimination except for 11 strikers the company accused of "flagrant violations" of the law.

Their cases are to be arbitrated through the American Arbitration Association and, meanwhile, the company will pay them at their regular rates plus an 11-cent increase granted to all workers for no more than 30 days, pending a decision.

The couple will live in Fukushima, where Maddox is economic officer of the military government team.

Death Leap Blamed on Ex-Husband

A 30-year-old woman who leaped to her death early yesterday blamed a former husband for her suicide.

The woman, identified by police as Miss Frances Gerson, 30, of Cincinnati, Ohio, leaped from a window on the seventh floor of the Ambassador Hotel, 14th and K sts. nw., on the K st. side of the building.

Her body crashed against the window cornice of the High-Hat cocktail lounge and landed near the street curbing.

Police revealed that Miss Gerson left an eight-page letter, written to them the night of her death, telling why she committed suicide. The suicide letter charged that an Arlington, Va., man "drove" her to take her own life.

Deputy Coroner Richard M. Rosenberg issued a certificate of suicide.

Police timed her leap as shortly before 2 a. m. Hotel officials said she registered there at 12:11 a. m. The letter, dated 12:40 a. m. and written on Ambassador Hotel stationery, told police this story:

"In 1936 she was married to the See JUMP, Page 8, Column 3.

Vivian Kellems Defies U. S. Again On Source Taxes

Westport, Conn., Aug. 1 (AP)—Miss Vivian Kellems, cable grip manufacturer, challenged the Government again today to a court battle over the income-tax withholding law.

She issued her challenge in letters to President Truman and Secretary of the Treasury Snyder.

Miss Kellems told them she once more had violated the law by refusing to withhold income taxes from the pay of her employees during the second quarter of the year, and sent along records to prove it.

"As you know," she wrote, "it is my desire to test the constitutionality of the withholding tax law, and I am breaking the law so that you may take the case to court."

Farben Plant Blast Death Toll Now 175

Ludwigshafen, Germany, Aug. 1 (AP)—The known death toll of the I. G. Farben chemical plant disaster rose to 175 today as rescue workers extricated more bodies from the wreckage.

Police said 70 persons were missing. Some 400 of the 2500 injured were still in the hospital.

Studebaker Assails Ewing's Office for Barring Anti-Red Speech to Teachers

Censorship has barred the United States Office of Education from "exposing the tactics and dangers of communism" in the schools, John W. Studebaker said yesterday.

The former Commissioner of Education said censorship on speeches and statements from his office was imposed by the office of Oscar Ewing, Federal Security Administrator. He complained that an unnamed Ewing aide had rejected a speech urging teachers to expose communism.

Studebaker, who retired July 15, wrote Ewing protesting against moves he said would centralize authority over education in the administration, who he described as "a partisan politician."

[From Searspost, Me., where he is vacationing, Ewing told The Washington Post by telephone that he had "never heard before" of the incidents to which Studebaker referred.

"I simply don't know about them," he declared. "There has been no censorship that I know of. [Ewing, a close friend and political adviser of President Truman, said he expected to be away from Washington four weeks.]

In a 3500-word letter, copies of which were sent to Senate and House Appropriations Committee members, Studebaker said Ewing ordered that the Administrator's speech approve in advance every speech written by agencies of the Office of Education for public use. The office is one of the agencies under the FSA.

Studebaker said this resulted in a ruling by an unnamed staff member that the task of explaining Communist tactics to high school and college students "be left to the State Department and the FBI to work with the schools."

He said the ruling came on a proposed speech by a member of the education office staff to a group of Massachusetts high school principals on "teaching zeal for American democracy."

"Observing that it isn't the function of the State Department and the FBI to work with the schools and colleges," Studebaker wrote Ewing.

"To accept the dictum that the educational task of exposing communism should be left to these agencies would be tantamount to not having this vitally important educational task done at all, at least so far as the Federal Government is concerned."

Studebaker also charged that one of Ewing's staff members, named by the former commissioner, attempted to get him to "one down" for mailing some remarks he had made about communism in a talk at the University of California at Los Angeles last March.

Ewing, who quoted himself as saying: "Whether or not the Communist Party in this country should be outlawed, I do not presume to say. But of this I am convinced: that no avowed or proven Communist is fit to be entrusted with the job of inculcating the American way of life in any school; and I make that statement on the rather obvious ground that education for American democracy cannot be entrusted to the enemies of American democracy."

Studebaker said this speech was placed in the Congressional Record. But when he ordered copies printed for mailing to college and high schools, he said the order was "canceled."

French Flying Boat Missing Over Atlantic, 52 Aboard

Paris, France, Aug. 1 (AP)—Air France announced tonight that one of its six-engine transatlantic flying boats, the largest commercial plane in the world, is missing on a flight between Martinique and French West Africa with 52 persons aboard.

The last reported word from the giant craft, a "Latecoere 631," said the ship was in distress over the Atlantic. No position was given. The message was picked up by an American radio station in the Azores and relayed to the United States Embassy here.

At least one warship, French navy planes, a second Latecoere 631 and an Air France Constellation have started an air-sea search for the big craft, one of five built in France and used by Air France Lines. Ships at sea have been notified.

[The United States Coast Guard at New York said tonight the missing plane's last known position was at a latitude of 19 degrees, 27 minutes, north, and a longitude of 38 degrees, 25 minutes west at 8:10 p. m. July 31. This would place the plane about 800 to 900 miles northwest of the Cape Verde Islands.

The Coast Guard cutter Campbell is rushing 420 miles to the scene and expects to reach it tomorrow. Coast Guard and Air Force aircraft were said to be standing by to aid in the search from the African coast or the Cape Verde Islands, if the French ask for help.]

Should the plane be lost with all aboard it would be the second worst aviation disaster. Fifty-three died when a Douglas DC-4 crashed in Maryland in May, 1947. Fifty-three also were killed when a DC-4 crashed into a mountain in Colombia, South America, in February, 1947.

The flying boat left Fort de France in the French West Indies at 10:50 a. m. (EDT) yesterday. Air France said it was due at Port Etienne, north of Dakar, in French West Africa at 3 a. m. (EDT) today.

Air France said its last message from the plane at 8:10 p. m. last night reported all well aboard.

The plane carried 40 passengers and a crew of 12. Air France officials had not yet received a passenger list from Martinique.

Work was begun on the Latecoere 631 before the war and resumed after the war. Immediately after liberation eight of them were ordered.

Workers' Salaries Overdue

Soviet Curb on Berlin Funds Creating Economic Crisis

By Marguerite Higgins

Berlin, Aug. 1 (NYHT)—As a result of Soviet currency measures west Berlin tonight faced its greatest internal economic crisis.

This was admitted for the first time by American officials, who revealed that salaries for nearly one million west-sector workers are now overdue and that thousands of laborers are running out of money to buy food.

This predicament, which caused high level conferences all day and most of the night, resulted from Soviet refusal to release funds of west-sector enterprises deposited in the main bank—located in the Soviet sector—during last week's currency exchange. This has cut off more than 75 per cent of the west-sector's money supply.

Berlin's municipal government alone owes more than 30 million Reichsmarks in bills and salaries, including pay for west-sector firemen, policemen and streetcar conductors, according to the American military government.

Hardest hit by the currency snarl are the low-paid workers who have no savings and who must receive pay promptly in order to meet food and rent bills. Thousands have not been paid for more than two weeks.

American officials indicated tonight that a makeshift medium of exchange would be announced at least by the end of the week, if the Russians continue to block west sector funds.

Decisive action—such as the banning of the Soviet Deutsche-marks from the west sectors and introduction of additional western Deutsche marks—was being delayed as long as possible while efforts are being made at Moscow to arrange talks on Berlin and Germany.

The west sector firms have been keeping more than three quarters of their funds in Soviet controlled banks because Western Allied law requires them to pay 75 per cent of salaries in east zone marks and only 25 per cent in western marks.

Furthermore, the Western Allies declared the east zone mark valid for payment of rents and rations and other essentials in their sectors. This move, intended as a conciliatory gesture, made the west sectors heavily dependent on the east zone mark.

Monday is the day on which Soviet-sector stores are supposed to be ready with enough supplies to feed the entire city, as promised by the Russians. Thus far, only 17,000 Germans out of more than two million have registered with the Soviet-sector stores. Despite

War Wracks Jerusalem Despite Truce

Jews' Faith in U. N. Lost as Skirmishes With Arabs Continue

By Kenneth Bilby Jerusalem, Aug. 1 (NYHT).

Jerusalem is at war today, as it has been for eight months. The fiction of a truce is exploded every night in tracers, flares and mortar bursts which illuminate this city.

During the last 24 hours, for example, there has scarcely been a minute when bullets or grenades were not disturbing Jerusalem's Sabbath. It differed little from other days of the warlike truce.

More significant than the nightly skirmishes between Arab and Jewish patrols in the no man's land of Misrata, than the grenades which are lobbed back and forth over the Old City's walls, are the political manifestations which violence has provoked among the city's Jewish populace.

Faith in U. N. Lost

Right or wrong, these 100,000 Jews have lost faith in the ability of the United Nations to rule Jerusalem as an international city. Probably 80 per cent want to become part of Israel without delay. They are resigned to further fighting and they would rather fight on their own.

This yearning is being skillfully exploited by the Irgun Zvai Leumi and the Stern group, despite some frowns from the Jewish municipal administration. Yesterday and today the two dissident organizations brought their campaign into the open with torchlight parades, street corner petitions and mass meetings.

The city is more thoroughly fortified, more tense and more suspicious daily. It is impossible to determine the responsibility for truce breaches because a single shot from any direction can produce a riot.

Asheville Bans Crowds in Fight Against Polio

Asheville, N. C., Aug. 1 (AP)—The streets, swimming pools, movie houses and churches of this resort city were empty and silent today as health officials banned public gatherings to fight the polio epidemic gripping North Carolina.

The city's million-dollar resort business had faded away as residents kept to their homes with the State polio total last reported at 1095.

Public gatherings in this city of 50,000 were banned by the municipal health commission, effective at 1 a. m.

Officials exempted church services but asked residents voluntarily to give up worship meetings.

Parliament to O.K. Regime Hungary Premier's Retention By New President Predicted

Budapest, Hungary, Aug. 1 (AP)—Parliamentary circles predicted today that Hungary's new President will reappoint Premier Lajos Dinnyes and his cabinet.

Deputy Premier Arpad Szakasits was nominated for the presidency Saturday by the United (Communist-ruled) Labor Party to succeed Zoltan Tildy. Tildy resigned Friday a few hours after the interior ministry announced that his son-in-law, Dr. Viktor Csorokny, had been arrested on charges of spying and treason. Szakasits' unanimous election by Parliament, probably Monday, is considered a foregone conclusion.

His choice is considered a reward for bringing his socialist followers into the Labor Party.

West Envoys Hope to See Stalin Today

Diplomats Seek Four-Power Parley On Berlin and Other Questions

By Joseph Newman Moscow, Aug. 1 (NYHT)—

Diplomatic representatives of the United States, Britain and France were standing by tonight, awaiting a reply to their request for a joint audience with Prime Minister Stalin to discuss the possibility of four-power negotiations on Berlin and Germany.

The request was made in separate meetings which American Ambassador Walter Bedell Smith, Britain's special envoy, Frank Roberts, and French Ambassador Yves Chataigneau had with Soviet Foreign Minister Vyacheslav M. Molotov last night. It was probably transmitted to the Kremlin last night or early today.

The appointment may materialize at any time, possibly Monday night. Audiences granted foreign envoys usually are held in the Kremlin at night.

Western Envoys Lunch Together

After their separate meetings with Molotov last night, the three Western diplomats had lunch together today at Spassko House, the American Ambassador's residence. Counselors of the American, British and French embassies also were present, to be on hand for final consultations before the joint meeting with Stalin.

Eddy Gilmore, Associated Press correspondent in Moscow, said the three Western diplomats exchanged impressions among themselves today after their separate and unexpected interviews last night with Molotov. All three appeared in high spirits. The three held an informal meeting at Spassko House, Smith's residence.

It now is considered probable there will be no new developments in the latest approach of the Western powers to Russia until early next week.

Molotov Would Participate

Shortly before midnight, when an awaited telephone call failed to materialize, the British envoy left Spassko House and the embassy household prepared to go to bed and start over again tomorrow.

Molotov will participate in any talks which the Western envoys have with Stalin. It is not unlikely that Marshal Vasily D. Sokolovsky, Soviet Military Governor in Germany, may have been asked to return to Moscow to report on the situation there.

(The French news agency AFP, quoted by the German Deutscha agency in Frankfurt, reported tonight that Stalin would receive the Western representatives Sunday or Monday. In Washington, the State Department would neither confirm nor deny the report.)

If four-power negotiations are arranged, it is supposed these will take the form of another session of the Council of Foreign Ministers or a meeting of the Big Four—See MOSCOW, Page 3, Column 6.

Yugoslav Envoy To Romania Is Dismissed

Belgrade, Yugoslavia, Aug. 1 (AP)—Yugoslavia has dismissed her Ambassador to Romania, Radonja Golubovic, as an aftermath of the split between Premier Marshal Tito and the Cominform, the official Yugoslav news agency announced today.

The news agency, Tanjug, said Golubovic had been denounced by employees of his embassy as a traitor, had refused to return to Yugoslavia, and had "placed himself under the protection of Romanian authorities."

(In Bucharest, the Romanian capital, Golubovic said he resigned as a protest against the Tito government's attitude toward the recent Cominform resolution attacking the Yugoslav Communists for "praying from the party line.")

Tanjug said Golubovic was removed from his duties after embassy officials reported he "undoubtedly belonged to the unhealthy and wavering category of Communists."

Prison Nips Career of Alfred Krupp, Ruthless Scion of Armament Dynasty

The lantern-jawed, solemn-faced German industrialist who was the "big gun" in more ways than one—of Hitler's ruthlessness, saw his omnipotence go up in smoke this weekend. Alfred Krupp von Bohlen und Halbach faces a 12-year prison sentence. He was convicted on two war crimes counts after a six-months' touch-and-go trial at Nuremberg before the United States tribunal.

Krupp's high-living and high handedness had made him notorious as the brains of the Krupp munitions works since 1933, when he succeeded his doddering father in the gigantic war-making machine.

Ironically, Alfred Krupp's conviction was the result of evidence, not that he made weapons and explosives for slaughtering humanity, but rather, that he engaged in perhaps a more insidious mode of destruction—exploitation of slave labor. On another count, he was convicted of plundering Nazi-occupied lands.

The fancy handle which Herr Krupp uses belongs to his family, with the notable exception of the key name. Dr. Gustav von Bohlen und Halbach, father of the prison-bound Alfred, gained more than fortune and fame by marriage in 1906. Kaiser Wilhelm II instigated the match, between the old man and Bertha Krupp, the 20 year-old heiress to the munitions fortune.

Krupp named Germany's biggest World War I cannon after his spouse—"Big Bertha."

Alfred Krupp is the eldest of five sons born along with two daughters to that profitable union. He is the namesake of the founder of the firm which had forged arms for Napoleon, the Hapsburgs, the Hohenzollerns and the Nazis. That was great grandfather Alfred, known himself as a tyrant and a dictator.

When this present-day Alfred became the lightning rod of the enterprise in 1943, it wasn't a matter of picking the most logical heir. He was equipped to carry on in the same determined fashion as his forbears, and his father was already "in solid" with Adolf Hitler. That was enough, it would seem, to insure the destiny of the business.

His inheritance of the directorship, however, conformed to policy established generations before, but temporarily abandoned before World War II. To give undivided control to a single heir, rather than allot shares in the firm to brothers and sisters.

Alfred was captured in 1945 at Villa Hugel, the secluded, rambling estate of the Krupp family near Essen, Germany, site of their major factories.

He was then described as a "thin, nervous man, balding at 37 and trimly dressed in a pin-striped business suit."

A brace of the mansion's retainers, once numbering as many as 123, blocked the door when a strapping American lieutenant colonel started to enter. But it was a feeble attempt, and the culprit was taken in tow.

Asked what were his plans for the future, the man who had made $160,000 annually during World War II replied:

"I hope to rebuild the factories and produce again."

The military tribunal decreed otherwise. RICHARD MORRIS.

25,000 Youths Needed For National Guard

The National Guard notified teen-age youths yesterday that it has some 25,000 vacancies which will permit them to fulfill their "patriotic obligations" without waiting to be drafted.

Maj. Gen. Kenneth F. Cramer, chief of the National Guard Bureau, said these vacancies present an "opportunity" for young men who have not yet reached the age of 18 years and six months, and for veterans who served at least 90 days but less than 12 months in the armed forces before Pearl Harbor and after VJ-Day.

Berliners Pay Tribute To Dead U. S. Fliers

Berlin, Aug. 1 (AP).—Three thousand persons paid tribute under a blistering sun today to five Americans who have died in the airlift supplying this Soviet-blockaded city.

They heard speakers denounce the blockade as inhuman and praise the airlift fliers as "heroes who help us resist subjugation under a new dictatorship."

But even as the service was being held, the Russians, through their official press, threatened western Berliners with extension of the siege into the winter unless the elected city government yields to Communist demands for economic control over the entire city.

Favored by excellent weather, the U. S. Air Force continued its blockade runs to Berlin. In a 24-hour period ending at 3 p. m., Skymasters and Dakotas made 34 flights into Berlin with a new record load of 2054 tons of food and coal.

Many western Berliners declared the Russians were starving the German population of their surrounding occupation zone to move food to Berlin. The Christian Democratic newspaper Der Tag reported today that women at Halle, in Soviet-occupied Saxony, have staged a hunger demonstration protesting failure to fulfill promises of rations.

At a Socialist Party meeting, Franz Neumann, chairman of the party in Berlin, told delegates: "If the Soviet Union attempts to apply its national characteristics to our people, it will meet with the sternest opposition."

The Socialist Party congress has passed a resolution directing Socialist members of Berlin's city council to reject cooperation with the Communist representation in the council "as long as it refuses to take a stand on the blockade."

Kerensky Advises America To Get Truth to Russians

New York, Aug. 1 (AP).—Alexander Kerensky, former Prime Minister of Russia, said today that if the United States told the Russian people how it felt about them, Stalin could never mobilize them for war.

Kerensky said nearly 20,000,000 peasant families long for release from Communist regimentation in Russia and that some 12,000,000 Russian slave laborers hate the Communists.

Writing in the August issue of the American Magazine, Kerensky said, "There is hardly a family in Russia which doesn't hope passionately for revenge for a monstrous wrong perpetrated by the Communists."

Yet, he said, the United States "get tough" policy with the Kremlin did not draw a distinction between the Russian government and its people.

"If the United States would alter its tactics and act boldly and unflinchingly to drive a wedge between the Communist government and the Russian people, America would end for all time, I believe, the Communist aggression that threatens to produce another war," the Russian exile said.

Instead, he said the American Government fails to let the Russian people know that its sympathies are with their struggle for establishing personal and political freedom.

He said the Government should penetrate the "iron curtain" and tell the Russians that it considers them apart from their Communist government.

The Voice of America has "gratified" Communists by not doing this, Kerensky said.

Kerensky, who said he receives secret reports from behind the "iron curtain," said the time is ripe for "a wise and resolute project" to spread democratic ideas in the Soviet Union.

"Sabotage is increasing... the iron curtain is full of holes... Stalin fears more perhaps than the atomic bomb a campaign reaching every corner of Russia telling the truth about the ideals of the people of the United States and their desire that the dictatorship of the Communist Party be destroyed.

"He knows that he can never mobilize the Soviet Union to wage war on a nation that wants Russia to be strong, united and free."

Americans apparently know nothing of armed resistance which downtrodden people have set up in Russian territory, Kerensky said.

"The Ukrainian insurgent army of about 200,000 men has its headquarters in the Carpathian Mountains and constantly wages guerrilla warfare on units of the Red army," he said.

370 German Women Freed By Russians

Hamburg, Germany, Aug. 1 (AP). The first German women captured by the Russians during the war were returned to Germany from Siberia today. They said they had spent three years working in coal mines at starvation wages.

The 370 middle-aged women were interviewed at the Friedland release camp, in the British zone of Germany. They said they were captured by the Russians in 1945, and taken by train to Siberia, where they were forced to work underground at the same jobs as men.

When they arrived in the British zone, the women wore tattered clothes. Burlap bags were wrapped around their legs and feet. All were said to be suffering from malnutrition and exhaustion.

The repatriates said each woman had to produce 4½ tons of coal a day. They were paid 48 rubles daily, which was not enough money to buy food, they said.

More than 50 per cent of the women prisoners who worked in the mines died of hunger and exhaustion, they declared.

MR. BLANDINGS BUILDS HIS DREAM HOUSE—a Selznick release

"Hm-m-m...so Mrs. Blandings Builds a Dream Kitchen...eh?"

Hm-m-m. After learning the hard way how to build a house, I'm glad Mrs. Blandings took over the job of planning the kitchen. Let's see how she made out...

1. Mr. Blandings: Hello, Dear, what are you dreaming up for dinner in this bright little workshop?
Mrs. Blandings: See for yourself, Nosey. But the best part of the dream is the way my "Unseen Friend" lends a hand.
Mr. B: Your "Unseen Friend"? Who do you mean... anybody I know?

Mrs. B: Of course it is. Our "Unseen Friend" is Nickel—the wonderful metal that's in these shining Stainless Steel pots and pans... and in the Inconel cooking surfaces of the electric range.
Mr. B: Well, "live and learn," I always say... Will wonders never cease?
Mrs. B: Not with our "Unseen Friend" around.

3. Mr. Blandings: Now don't tell me... I suppose your little pal is lurking in this gadget too? By the way, Dear, what is it... a spare bathtub?
Mrs. Blandings: Don't be silly... that's the electric dishwasher... and will you be glad next time I want you to dry the dishes! Because, after they're washed clean with really hot water, they dry themselves... while you read your paper.
Mr. B: And I suppose our "Unseen Friend" Nickel is ready to leap into action at the drop of a plate. But, say, tell me one thing. Why do they call it "Your Unseen Friend"?
Mrs. B: Because it lends a friendly hand in so many things we use every day.

INCO: That's right, Mr. Blandings, over a hundred things right here in your own kitchen! But it's usually combined with other metals, so you very seldom really see it...

Mr. and Mrs. B. together: And that's why Nickel is called "Your Unseen Friend"!

Capitol Policemen Guard Miss Bentley

By Dorothea Andrews
Post Reporter

As two congressional committees probed evidence of a Communist spy ring among trusted Government workers, the source of these sensational disclosures, Miss Elizabeth T. Bentley, self-confessed Communist spy, went into seclusion yesterday.

She is being kept "under wraps" by two Capitol policemen at an undisclosed hideout. Miss Bentley is under subpoena from the House Committee on Un-American Activities and the Senate Special Investigating Committee, both of which will meet today to develop further the testimony Miss Bentley has given of Communist activities in Government circles.

Late developments last night were:

1. The House Committee on Un-American Activities expects to write to Attorney General Tom Clark today to ask him to call a grand jury here to study evidence in its files.

2. A surprise witness today before the investigating subcommittee of the Senate Committee on Executive Expenditures will be Louis Budenz, former managing editor of the Daily Worker, who renounced communism and joined the Catholic church. Budenz, as one well acquainted with Miss Bentley, is being brought in as a corroborative witness.

3. The Senate group, which is concerning itself with the operation of Government loyalty checks, also is trying to reach Dr. John W. Studebaker, former Commissioner of Education, who yesterday accused FSA Administrator Oscar Ewing of censoring anti-Communist teachings. They want Studebaker to testify.

4. At 2 p.m., the House Committee will meet in executive session. Chairman Thomas (R., N. J.) has stated all the persons named by Miss Bentley will be subpoenaed and quizzed in public hearings. And at the first possible moment, he told a reporter, the committee will file a formal, written request for the convening of a special grand jury in Washington, looking to prompt prosecution of espionage charges in all cases in which this is warranted.

The committee has evidence of its own which backs up charges of wartime Government espionage in "about half" of the 30-some cases cited by Miss Bentley, it was learned yesterday.

Three of the persons whom Miss Bentley has charged were involved either directly or indirectly in Communist activities here already under subpoena by the House Committee. These are Nathan Gregory Silvermaster, formerly with the Board of Economic Warfare, later with the Agriculture Department, Charles Kramer (born Kravitsky), formerly on the staff of a Senate Education and Labor Subcommittee under Senator Pepper (D., Fla.) and Harry S. Magdoff, formerly with the Commerce Department.

Another denial of Miss Bentley's charges was made yesterday by Frank Coe, whom she had described as a member of the Communist Party and one of a group of Treasury employees who furnished the Soviet spy ring with information.

Coe said Miss Bentley's statement was "untrue and absurd." He said he did not know her and added, "I was never a member of any such group as she describes. I have never given information to Soviet agents or to any unauthorized person and I have already testified to that effect under oath."

William W. Remington, who comes up for more quizzing by the Senate committee today, elaborated yesterday on his recent explanation of his connection with Miss Bentley in an interview with the WINX program, "Is Congress Doing Its Job?", conducted by Ed Hart.

Remington said he was "quite flattered" to be asked for information by Miss Bentley, because he was under the impression she was doing research work for I. F. Stone of the newspaper PM, and for Reporter Kenneth Crawford. He added information he gave her had already been published.

Remington said the two formulas which Miss Bentley said he gave her were strictly "crackpot stuff," made public after they had been proved worthless to show Miss Bentley how some crackpots wasted the WPB's time.

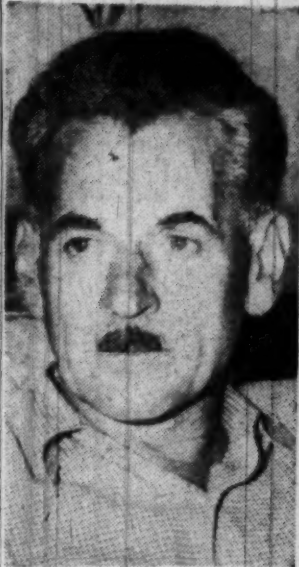

Efforts to reach other persons named in Miss Bentley's testimony failed yesterday. Victor Perlo, whom she named as head of one spy ring, was remembered as an "able but eccentric" fellow at the Federal Home Loan Bank Board, where he worked from June, 1935 to October, 1937. One official there said Perlo came to FILBB with a reputation as a "mathematical genius."

Perlo worked during the war for the Advisory Council on National Defense of the OPA; the War Production Board; the Civil Production Administration; and on December 14, 1945, began working for the Office of Monetary Research of the Treasury Department. Robert E. Stripling, House Committee investigator, said at Saturday's hearing that the committee did not know Perlo's present whereabouts.

Two other Treasury officials named by Miss Bentley as being connected with Communist activities were out of the city yesterday. Harold Glasser, former director of Monetary Research, whose last address here was 5410 Cathedral ave., has disconnected his phone and moved from that address, telephone company records show.

Another, William H. Taylor, assistant director of the Division of Monetary Research, whose Washington address is 3120 51st pl., had grounds stated previously. (These were "I refuse to answer the question on the grounds that I might incriminate myself.")

Stripling—Do you know Victor Perlo? (named by Miss Bentley as the head of another spy ring here.) Silvermaster—I refuse to answer this question on the same grounds.

Investigator Louis Russell then took over the questioning and asked about others now named as part of the espionage setup.

Russell—Do you know Harry Magdoff?

Silvermaster was next asked a series of questions about other Government employees concerning whose affiliations the committee has considerable evidence. He likewise declined to answer these questions on the grounds he might incriminate himself.

This part of the transcript has not yet been made public since these employees were not part of the particular spy rings about which she testified.

The Civil Service file concerning Silvermaster is one of the heaviest ever accumulated, committee sources said.

Silvermaster was once employed in the California State Relief Administration. In August, 1935, he was brought to Washington to work in the Resettlement Administration.

In 1937 he left the Resettlement Administration to work for the United States Maritime Labor Board. In 1938 he returned to Resettlement Administration, then part of the Farm Security Administration, where he headed the Labor Division.

In 1943 he transferred to the Office of Surplus Property of the United States Maritime Labor Board. In 1943 he transferred to the Office of Surplus Property of the United States Maritime Labor Board. In 1943 he transferred to the Office of Surplus Property of the United States Maritime Labor Board.

Finally, by other administrative changes, he was employed under the War Assets Administration.

Committee officials regard Victor Perlo, onetime WPB and later Treasury employee, named by Miss Bentley as heading still another ring, as a figure of nearly if not quite equal importance with Silvermaster.

Perlo, according to records filed under the law with the clerk of the House of Representatives, is now employed by the Progressive Party, which recently nominated Henry Wallace as its Presidential candidate.

Records show that Perlo was born May 15, 1912, in New York City of Russian-born parents.

He graduated from Columbia University with an M.A. Perlo entered Government service in 1933. He was first employed by NRA.

From June, 1935, until October, 1937, Perlo was employed by the Federal Home Loan Bank Board.

From October, 1937, until September, 1939, Perlo was associated with the Brookings Institute.

From September, 1939, until September, 1940, Perlo was employed by the Department of Commerce. From November 15, 1940, on the ground they might incriminate him.

The transcript of his closed session testimony shows the committee asked him if he knew Harold Ware, deceased son of Ella Reeve (Mother) Bloor of the Communist Party. Ware is supposed to have established the first Communist Party unit among United States Government workers.

Kramer answered: "That is a question that was put to me before the grand jury, and I made the answer then, I make the answer now that I must decline to answer on the grounds that this might be self-incriminating."

Then he was asked: "Are you now or have you ever been a member of the Communist Party of the United States?"

"The same answer on the same grounds to that question," Kramer replied.

Finnish Reds Fight Premier

Helsinki, Finland, Aug. 1 (U.P.)—The executive committee of the Finnish Communist Party appealed to all Finns today to join the Communists in fighting against the Social Democratic cabinet of Premier Karl A. Fagerholm.

The appeal was published under big black headlines in all Finnish Communist papers. It was directed to "workers, working peasants and the whole Finnish people."

"American trust leaders now demand a change of policy in Finland equal to what happened in France and Italy," it said.

This cabinet is an evidence of the fact that rightwing social democracy in our country has allied more closely with reactionary non-leftist imperialists, with the view to bringing our country into great disaster."

The declaration called on the nation to fight for a new cabinet which would be "trusted by a majority of the Finnish people."

Perlo's ring, Miss Bentley testified, was originally supervised by John Abt, left-wing labor lawyer who was one of the key figures at the Progressive Party convention.

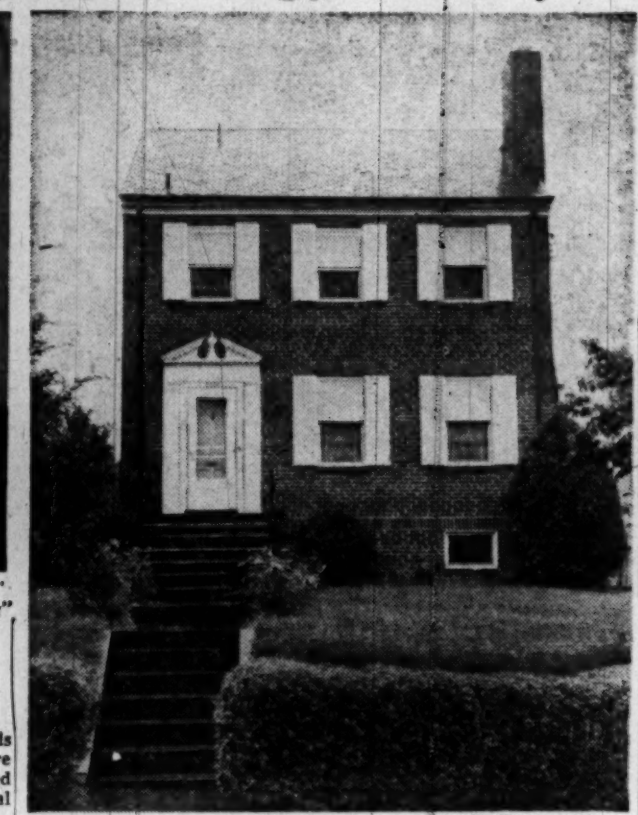

Another person prominently moving around on the platform at the Philadelphia convention for Wallace was Charles Kramer, born Kravitsky, one-time professional staff member of a Senate subcommittee on education and labor.

Kramer is now doing labor research under contract to the Wallace party.

Harry Magdoff, another mentioned as a member of a ring by Miss Bentley, is now employed by the New Council of American Business in New York City, which is supporting Wallace.

One figure mentioned by Miss Bentley, Bernard Redmont, is now employed as a newspaper correspondent. He is a foreign correspondent for the United States News and World Report. She said he never had and thus never passed on any secret information when he was with the Office of the Coordinator of Inter-American Affairs.

Kramer, who was questioned before the grand jury in New York, and also before the committee in closed session on July 2, 1948, declined to answer many questions

West Awaits Stalin Reply

Stalin, President Truman, Prime Minister Attlee and French Premier Andre Marie.

Talks Seen Likely

The top leaders of the Soviet Union are likely to agree to the proposal to examine the possibility of four-power negotiations on Germany, since both Stalin and Molotov have gone on public record as favoring talks for the peaceful settlement of East-West differences.

The joint approach of the three Western powers could even be interpreted here as acceptance by them of earlier invitations extended by Stalin and Molotov to discuss international differences.

Stalin's invitation took the form of an open letter to Henry A. Wallace on May 17 and Molotov's the form of a statement at the Warsaw conference on June 24 proposing quadripartite negotiations on Germany. In his letter to Wallace, Stalin spoke of negotiations for overall settlement of differences not only in Germany but throughout the world.

The Soviet press assumed an increasingly strong position on the Berlin situation today, stating it is useless for the Western powers to remain in Berlin.

Bevin Studies Report

From Moscow Envoy

London, Aug. 1 (NYHT.)—Foreign Secretary Ernest Bevin remained near Whitehall today during the traditional August bank holiday weekend to study a report from his special envoy at Moscow on yesterday's conversations between representatives of the three Western powers and Soviet Foreign Minister Molotov.

The declaration called on the nation to fight for a new cabinet which would be "trusted by a majority of the Finnish people."

held up several days by one of Ewing's assistants.

Ewing's aide argued he said that it ought to be "toned down," adding that he "felt sure it would bring unfavorable reaction from a large number of educators."

"It was released and distributed in May," Studebaker said. "I have heard no objection from any one." Studebaker said to Ewing the "capstone of the argument against the centralization of control which you are developing, at least so far as education is concerned, is to be found in the fact that you are admittedly a partisan politician. . . . There is a deep-rooted tradition in this country . . . that the function of education in a democracy should be completely removed from partisanship."

Studebaker said that Ewing's program was moving toward con-

U. N. Council Meets Today on Palestine

Plea for Refugees Bernadotte Would Send Arabs Home

Amman, Trans-Jordan, Aug. 1 (AP)—Count Folke Bernadotte said tonight he had recommended to the United Nations Security Council that Arab refugees be permitted to return to their homes in Jewish-held areas of Palestine during the present truce regardless of Jewish objections.

The U. N. mediator said he also had notified the Security Council that both Arabs and Jews have accepted in principle the demilitarization of Jerusalem.

"Shertok (Israeli Foreign Minister Moshe Shertok) told me the Jews refuse to allow Arab displaced persons to come back during the truce," Bernadotte said, "but I have told the Security Council that from a humanitarian point of view, and despite the enormous difficulties, there should be no conditions on the return of these poor people to their homes."

There are some 300,000 Arabs homeless as a result of the war. Bernadotte is scheduled to fly to Jerusalem tomorrow. Alexandria, Tuesday, Tel Aviv and Haifa Thursday and return to his headquarters on Rhodes Friday.

voke a wild flurry of rifle or automatic fire.

No Observers Seen

"We report these things regularly," a Jewish commander said, "and they are eventually forwarded to the truce observers. So far, there hasn't been a truce observer around here. This is war just as much as it was before the truce."

Count Folke Bernadotte, U. N. mediator, is scheduled to arrive here Monday. The Israeli cabinet will arrive at the same time, possibly for another effort to solve the problem.

Scattered Fights Mark All Palestine Fronts

Tel Aviv, Israel, Aug. 1 (AP)—Sporadic fighting on all three Palestine fronts was reported today amid fears in this Jewish capital that the truce may break down at any time.

The Israeli foreign office is expected to protest against alleged attacks by King Farouk's Egyptian forces in the south, Iraqi troops around Jenin and Fawzi El-Kawaji's irregulars in the north.

There is definite apprehension in Israel that the truce may be short lived. The first truce lasted 28 days, from June 11 to July 9. The second and present truce started July 18 and is one day more than two weeks old.

Drive on Reds Begun By Tibet's Dalai Lama

Nanking, Aug. 1 (AP)—The Dalai Lama of Tibet has launched a religious campaign against communism, the official Central Chinese News Agency reported today. In exotic Lhasa, his capital high in the Himalayas, the Lama is leading 100 "living Buddhas" and 3000 student Lamas in a three-day anti-Communist prayer meeting, the agency said.

Under the golden roof of the 1000-lamp Tachao Lamasery, they are chanting their most powerful litany, imploring victory for the Chinese government over the enemy.

Lake Success, Aug. 1 (AP)—The Security Council will meet in special session Monday to consider urged Palestine questions raised by Britain.

A British source said his delegation wants council action now on:

1. The 300,000 Arab refugees who fled their homes in Palestine before Israel's forces.
2. A British resolution demanding Israel free five Britons held on general espionage charges.

The U. N. already has sent Sir Raphael Cilento, director of the social affairs department of the U. N., to the Near East for survey of the refugee problem.

Israel's mission to the U. N. countered it will protest to the council the detention by Britain on Cyprus Island of 10,000 Jewish refugees.

Lets Many Jews Leave

The British spokesman said Britain has not permitted men of military age to leave Cyprus because the truce resolution of May 29 prohibited their departure. He said Jews not of military age are leaving Cyprus for Palestine regularly.

Council delegates had not expected to meet until Wednesday morning, when the Trieste situation will come up. Concerned over the fate of the five men held in Tel Aviv, the British say they were seized July 6 by Irgun Zvai Leumi at a power station flying the flag of the Security Council's Truce Commission. They charged that the Jews showed disrespect for the U. N.

Israel answered that the men were arrested in their homes and that orderly processes of justice will be observed.

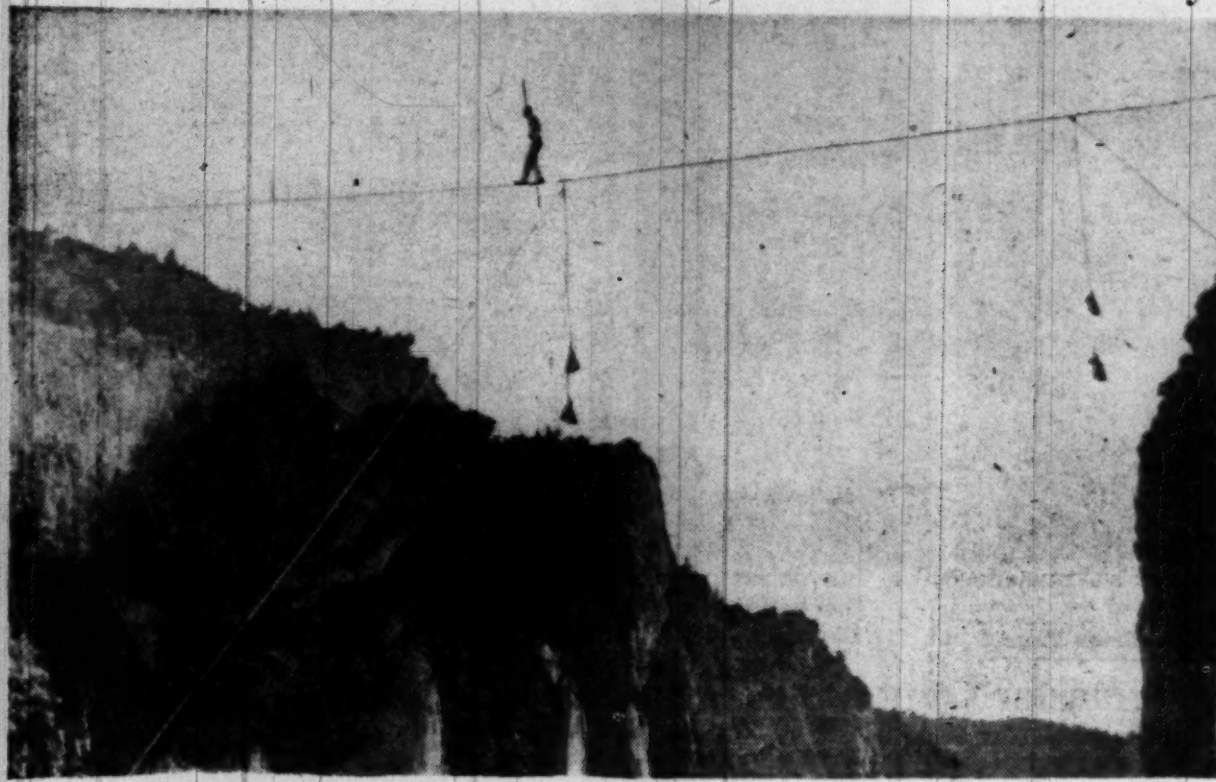

Bernadotte Dissatisfied
The five were booked last Tuesday by an Israeli police prosecutor on general charges of espionage and security violations.

Reports from the office of the U. N. mediator, Count Folke Bernadotte, disclose that he is dissatisfied with the slow progress of building up his truce observation teams.

U. N. reports show the United States has not furnished all the men and materiel asked by Bernadotte. He asked for 125 men from the United States for truce teams and so far has received 30. He asked for 15 planes of the C-47 type and got 4. He asked for 50 jeeps and got 30.

France and Belgium were reported to have pledged all the men asked by Bernadotte, and most of them are on the job.

Truman Expected to Start Program This Week to Admit 205,000 DPs

By the United Press

President Truman is expected to set in motion this week the program to bring 205,000 homeless Europeans into the United States during the next two years.

State Department officials said the job offers have been pouring in from individuals, farmers, industrialists, business firms and public organizations, with more than 100,000 received. But no action can be taken on the offers until the President appoints a three-man "displaced persons commission" to supervise the program.

A White House spokesman said the President is expected to appoint the commissioners this week. If so, officials said, it may be possible to begin putting the first of the DP's on ships before the month is out, although it may be several months before big-scale immigrations get under way.

Tentative arrangements have been made for the use of more than a dozen ships to bring the homeless from Europe. The DP law specifies that the immigrants must have jobs and homes waiting for them.

Most of the job offers thus far are for farm workers, domestics, bakers, tailors, mechanics and lumberjacks. Citrus growers in California would like to employ 3000 DPs. A railroad wants several hundred. The New York State Committee on Displaced Persons estimated that at least 50,000 could be employed in that State. It is doubtful, however, that New York State will get 50,000 if the law is interpreted literally by the DP commissioners. The law specifies that there must be a fair geographical distribution of the DP's throughout the United States.

Greek Rebels Lose Key Peak

Athens, Aug. 1 (AP)—A general staff spokesman said today that man officers denied they offered Kleptis Height now "may be considered occupied" by Greek troops. Donovan said the rift between United States military authorities and the Greek government over how the civil war should be fought has not been healed.

Ten days ago it was erroneously announced Kleptis Height had been taken. It is the key to the Smolika Range, in northwestern Greece. The battle area is near the Albanian border, and generally is referred to as the Grammos Mountains front.

Greek troops captured Kleptis several days ago, but were driven back by guerrilla counterattacks two hours later. Since then savage fighting has been in progress. The rebels were reported going deeper into the Grammos Range.

New York, Aug. 1 (AP)—A National Broadcasting Co. correspondent, John Donovan, said today that Greek War Minister George Stratos has charged American officials with failure to live up to a promise to provide poison gas for use against the guerrillas.

Air "Lift"

Nothing the Russians have claimed in the way of invention can surpass the fecundity of their imagination in devising new bluffs against the Western air support of Berlin. After the crash of an American supply plane last week, they charged that the operations were being conducted by unskilled, ill-experienced pilots. They scarcely could have picked a more fantastic complaint. The safety record of the air lift under almost unbelievable difficulties has been truly amazing, and it would be interesting to contrast it with Russian performance under similar conditions. But now the Moscow radio has outdone itself. In a broadcast monitored by the State Department it alleges that the American flights to Berlin "in truth are not used to feed the people, but to remove goods from Berlin. Every day some 500 tons of capital goods and valuables are being removed from Berlin." The inference is quite natural, judging from the Russian experience with assets "liberated" from Germany. But surely some kind-hearted fellow traveler ought to instruct the Kremlin that the word "lift" has other connotations than merely "piller."

On Education

A great enthusiasm for self-education, so we hear, is spreading throughout Britain nowadays with what appears to be the hearty encouragement of the Labor Government. Manuals for self-instruction in almost every conceivable subject, prepared by eminent experts, including Oxford and Cambridge dons, are rolling off the presses and apparently have no lack of purchasers. The general idea seems to be that while it may be necessary to postpone for a time some of the material benefits of the socialized society, such as beefsteaks and butter, this need not apply to what are sometimes called the higher things of life. If Englishmen who have grown bored of the rather tepid psychic excitement afforded by football matches, dog races and the Sunday newspapers prefer to amuse themselves with a study of the influence of Sarcenic mathematics on the development of contrapuntal music, by all means let them do so, at least while the supply of paper holds out. A housewife who develops a passionate interest in Old Norse etymology or in the mystical writings of the pseudo-Dionysius will have something better to think about, while waiting in the queue at the butcher's or green grocer's, than the speeches of Mr. Evelyn John St. Loe Strachey.

Self-education, in the sense of learning acquired without benefit of classroom instruction, is, of course, nothing new. England itself has produced some notable examples of entirely self-educated men. The most famous of them perhaps was William Cobbett, whose appearance and mannerisms are said to have influenced the later representations of John Bull. In his younger days Cobbett spent just enough time in the United States to win himself a prominent place in the history of American journalism as the editor of Porcupine's Gazette. His innumerable writings are distinguished by an English style which is, or should be, the envy of any modern professor of literature and a skill at abuse and vituperation which must certainly be the despair of any contemporary Marxist. He was the author of a Grammar of the English Language, which to this day, in the opinion of many, remains the best introduction to the subject.

The late G. K. Chesterton, writing of Cobbett, observed that part of the price he paid for his self-education was that he became for the rest of his life an incorrigible schoolmaster, who insisted on instructing others in everything he had learned himself. This, in fact, seems to be a characteristic of self-educated men generally, and a similar example could be cited in the American, Orestes Brownson. Yet the logic of the matter seems to be that a self-educated man is qualified above others for the vocation of teaching. That is to say, since he incorporates in his person both teacher and pupil he should be able to view the pedagogical problem from both sides. Thus the first step in the educational reform that everybody agrees is so necessary might be to clear the professional teachers out of the schools and colleges and replace them with wholly self-taught men, assuming of course that in this day of universal literacy and well-nigh universal higher education, enough of them could be found.

Of course the experiment would be attended with certain dangers. It is possible that faculties of self-taught professors might lead the thinking of youth into utterly unexpected directions. One might imagine that Professor Cobbett, who had benefited so signally from the invention of the printing press, would become an enthusiast for progress who greeted each successive technical innovation with joy. But as a matter of fact he turned out to be a kind of reactionary, not in the sense in which we use the word nowadays, but in the sense of one who wanted to get back to the things that flourished before the life of man had been corrupted by factories, machines and business cycles. His lifetime coincided with the great age of industrial expansion in Great Britain, and he shuddered when he thought of whither it was leading. He felt that it must lead in the end to something like the present socialist civilization.

Exhibit On The Hill

Committees of both Senate and House are vying with each other in hoisting Elizabeth Bentley into a notoriety that in the light of her revealed character may not be entirely unwelcome. It is curious procedure. For what she has done the average reader will wonder why she is not before a grand jury answering one of a variety of possible charges—from the violation of security regulations to failure to register as the agent of a foreign principal. It is in a court of law that she should be given a chance to turn state's evidence.

The fact is, of course, that she has had her day in court. Evidently she appeared before the grand jury in New York which went over the ramifications of her sordid tale of espionage. Evidently she was granted immunity if she turned state's evidence. Evidently no indictable offense was discovered against the men she pilloried. Evidently the records of the grand jury hearing, which are supposed to be secret, were turned over to congressional investigators in quest of sensational useful for smearing and vote-getting. It is reprehensible, let alone curious, procedure. It is not enough of a penalty for some of the persons touched by the Bentley disclosures. But there are others who are now being caricatured in a circus of publicity by a middlebrow and foolish woman who admits that a lack of truth was one of the "principles" that she embraced when she became involved with the dead man Golos.

The revelations are certainly sensational, though the only shortcoming in this respect, as compared with the Canadian spy trial, is that no Russian is forthcoming. He may, of course, be waiting in the wings. But whether he is there or not, the story has some of the elements of melodrama, after the dirt has been scraped off it. Elizabeth Bentley and her friends and fellow Communists seem to have trapped or seduced officials in responsible wartime positions into disgoring data for relay to the Russians. In her favor were the circumstances of the times. The artfully contrived atmosphere of treason is artificial. A war was on, and Soviet Russia was our ally, for whose feats of arms, moreover, most Americans were full of admiration. In those days even Representative Rankin had a good word to say about Stalin. This does not condone leaks, but it explains some of them. In wartime the Capital was a free-and-easy place where even the itinerant imbibed "classified" information with free cocktails. There was no need to stand at street corners for it.

How much of the dope thus collected was valuable to the Russians is not explained. It might ruin a good story. After all, this country was officially in cahoots with the Russians, and surely the bulk of the data that the Bentley crowd got with such ostentatious surreptitiousness must have been made available to Moscow. Those were the days when officials were trying to encourage confidence in Russia by example. Moreover, the Russians, according to such authorities as General Deane in his Strange Alliance, are so full of suspicions that they look askance at gifts, let alone information. There was the case of the factory that was sent to Russia with an offer of American engineers to set it up. The offer was not accepted, and the plant remained in pieces, rusting away as if it were tainted. Much the same distrust doubtless went into the evaluation of the mountains of odds and ends of news that this spy ring purloined and relayed.

Except for Remington, the dramatist personae of this fantastically told plot still have to be heard. Remington, whatever his political beliefs, does not inspire confidence in his sense of responsibility. Nor is he an example of good hiring practice in Government service. But too much can be made of his position as chairman of the Department of Commerce committee on export licenses. From the figures this committee seems to be made up of inverted Micawbers waiting for applications from countries east of the iron curtain to turn down. And the chairman is a cipher compared with the military member, for this latter has a veto power. However, Remington seems to have been put in responsible jobs before he had arrived at the age of discretion, and this is the mildest thing one can say about him.

Except for him and another person on the list, the fact remains that not one of the men whose names Elizabeth Bentley is now broadcasting with toothsome enjoyment is now on the Federal payroll. What is clear is that by grace of Congress she is doing a better service for Moscow by her revelations than she did by her gumshoeing and sleuthing. Without a doubt eternal vigilance is the price of American security. And to this end, in view of the presence in our midst of an international conspiracy aimed at undermining it, the security laws should be invoked where they apply, and strengthened where they are weak. An equal price of our security, however, is wisdom and sobriety in the conduct of the Nation's affairs. Both qualities are lacking in dealing with Elizabeth Bentley. We can imagine the feeling against any East-West trade Elizabeth Bentley is being allowed to generate, the undermining of the integrity of Government service, the inculcation of that reciprocal fear between Government and the citizenry that Ferrero spoke of as an evil beyond computation.

Muscovite Straits

Secretary Marshall deprecates any speculation on the nature of the fresh demarche to Moscow. Well, there is meat for enough comment on the critical state of Russo-Western relations in the information coming out of London and Paris. And in all likelihood the Muscovites, never loathe to tear down veils of secrecy, one of these early days will be coming across with the whole story. The outline to be gathered from foreign capitals is that the Western powers are ready to negotiate not only about Berlin but about everything at issue throughout the continent of Europe. This is a marked change from the negative attitude of three months ago toward a parley. With Molotov, for whose return to the Soviet capital the three Western Ambassadors had been cooling their heels, ready to discuss preliminaries, a conference is not completely out of the question.

Whether the American purpose is to undo the unilateral acts of the last two months and make a fresh start is not clear from the dispatches. But the way seems to have been cleared for some deep sweeping. General Clay says that the currency squabble in Berlin is subject to negotiations. That was inevitable. The Westerners' Deutsch mark, in conformity with Gresham's law that bad currency will drive out good, has vanished, anyway. As any economist could have foretold, it is now either in German hoards or in Russian possession for use in the Western zone for such purposes as payments to agents in the Western zone. To prevent this traffic may have been one reason for the sealing of the Western zone against Russian intrusion. It was, at any rate, an odd action when a move was already on foot to get the Russians to talk things over. But the step, we suppose, provides one more card to play in the game of chances with the Russians.

Whether the idea of a German government at Frankfurt will be put on ice is another matter. It is not clear whether the Western powers, in spite of the reluctance of the German leaders to seal their fate in the eyes of the German people by participating in a separate government, will make any such offer. But a standstill in this matter, in our view, is a necessary concomitant of any Soviet raising of the surface blockade of Berlin. "Face," to be sure, is hard to sacrifice, especially after so much swearing we shall never consent has taken place. For this reason Professor James K. Pollock, in a letter on the opposite page the other day, would not have us back down, but we recall that he was insistent last year, in a pamphlet written for the Foreign Policy Association, that any formal division of Germany would bring on war. His earlier view seems to us as valid now as it was then.

The question remains whether the Russians, even with these concessions, would call off their dogs in Berlin, preparatory to discussions. As to that, it is anybody's guess. The Russians also have a lot of "face" implicated in the tussle over Berlin. They seem to be acting as if they feel that, with the activation of the Marshall Plan and the rumbling among the satellites, time is not on their side. If this is so, as we ourselves believe, surely the West should nurse it by prudent diplomacy. But by the same token the opposite counsel would apply to Moscow, and they are certainly not showing any disposition to behave cooperatively, if any testimony is afforded by Vishinsky's high-handedness at the Danubian conference. While Molotov was opening the door to the three Ambassadors in Moscow, Vishinsky was showing the way out to their colleagues in Belgrade.

In that event the air lift must be retained, and the test of nerves pursued till the Russians accept the concessions that the West seems prepared to make for the renewal of negotiations. Some sacrifice of face is required on both sides as the price for the exploration of a peaceful solution.

East-West

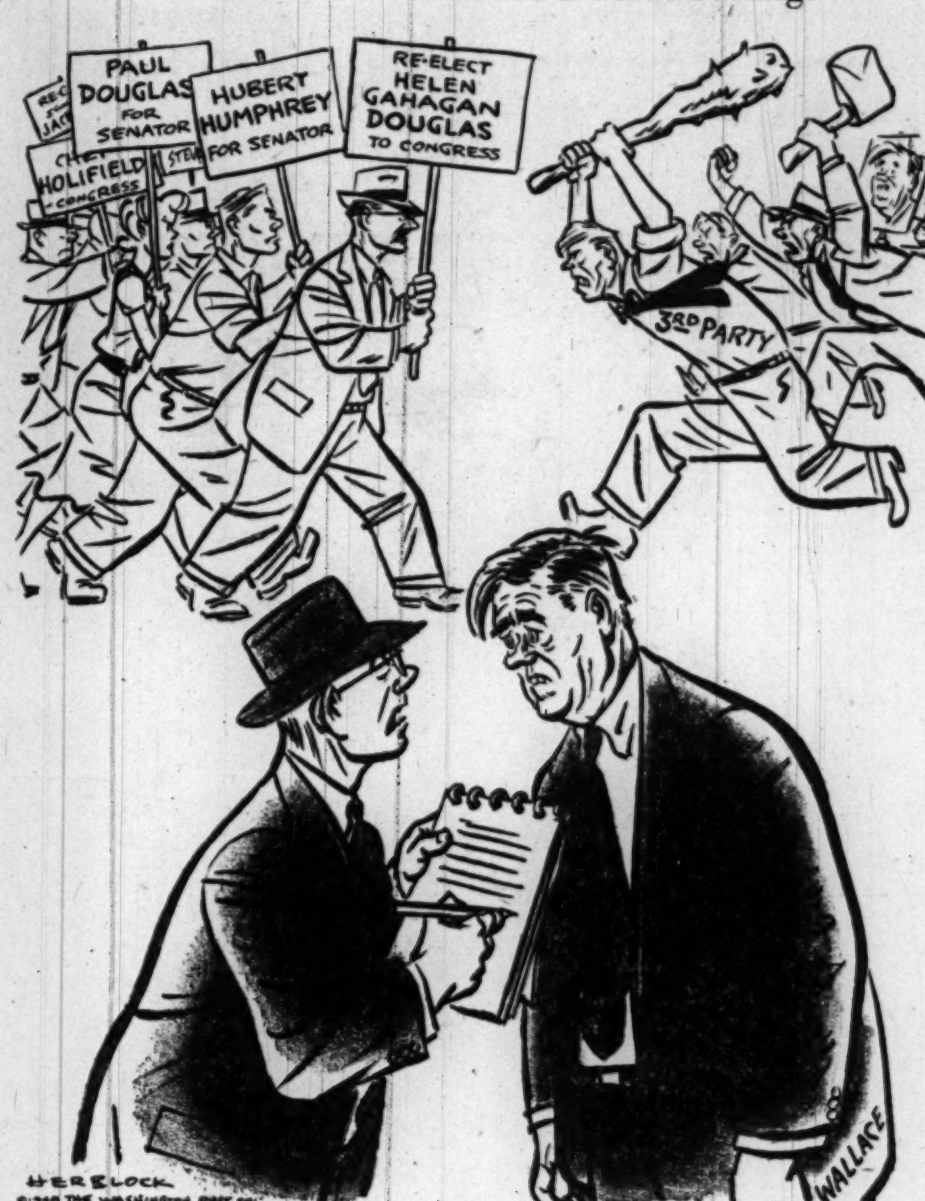

The revival of trade between European countries that are direct participants in the ECA program has been the subject of study and planning at the recent Paris conferences from which Mr. Hoffman has just returned. And agreements are now being perfected that are expected to provide the financial means for stimulating it. An even more difficult undertaking lies ahead—that of expanding trade between the countries of eastern and western Europe. It is ECA policy to encourage it. Both West and East can recover only by developing the exchange of goods, but eastern Europe has hitherto been restrained from expressing its concern.

Now the Easterners are taking their courage in both hands, and Moscow, with Russo-satellite relations in a delicate condition has lately begun to pay lip service to East-West trade. It has appealed to the U. N. Economic and Social Council to find a way for Communist and capitalist countries to cooperate, and representatives of eastern and western European countries are now discussing ways and means. Moscow's interest may amount to nothing but words. Indeed, for the time being no other construction is possible, for it is now engaged in a last desperate effort to wreck the ERP, instead of insuring its success.

SEEDS

Seeds are the still breath of God;
they suckle the milky sod until they feel past mothering soil to grow from the boe's toll.
They drink the sunlight through green lips and take the rain in tiny sips.
They are the voice of the Lord's Word struggling to be heard.
Seeds hold all the world in them and another world in their stem.
They creep upward through the ground's floor and with green fingers open the earthy door.

Letters To The Editor

Health Insurance

The letter of Dr. Mattingly (July 26) presents the case of the American Medical Association and its supporters against any health insurance plan, whether it is compulsory or voluntary. One need only remember the bitter attacks on the Group Health Association to realize that the objection is against the "insurance" feature rather than its "compulsory" side.

Dr. Mattingly's letter presents the following points:
1. The Physicians Forum, in supporting health insurance, represents only a small number of doctors.
2. The overwhelming majority of doctors do not favor health insurance.
3. The American Medical Society, among other things, constitutes an effective union whose majority is opposed to the plans for health insurance. (The remainder of Dr. Mattingly's letter serves not to prove that health insurance is undesirable per se, but that British doctors on the whole object to it.)

The above approach serves to clear the air of the specious discussion involving ethical and professional arguments. Basically it can be said that the method of dispensing medical services should be decided simply from the practical viewpoint—how to give a fair return to the doctors, and at the same time insure the best medical attention for the public. The answer given by Dr. Mattingly (and the American Medical Association) appears to be that the "profession" would not consider any plan which would prevent the individual doctor from charging all that the traffic can bear.

The attitude of the public should be guided by the needs of the majority. Is the practice of medicine at least equivalent in importance to a public utility or a public service? If so, is the public justified in establishing new rules of operation in the field to insure that the public welfare is more satisfactorily provided for, even though at some expense to the wishes of the organized "workers"?

MORRIS SMITH, Washington.

As Others See Us

The Englishman who wrote to you on July 27, reporting the unfriendly service in Washington hotels and the seeming dependence of Americans on "bought pleasures," is apparently forced to judge America by the servants he meets. The National Capital has no organized hospitality to insure that visiting officials from foreign countries have an opportunity to meet average government professional workers.

I cannot contradict the Englishman's criticisms of Washington hotels because the average Washington resident does not use hotels and cannot see the city as a stranger does. Nevertheless, this man cannot have a rounded judgment of Washington residents because he has not seen Federal workers in their homes. Government workers comprise over half of the employed population of Washington.

The Englishman emphasizes "bought pleasures," but there are thousands of Washingtonians—probably the majority of them—who leave their offices these hot evenings and go home to their gardens or back lawns and are not seen on the downtown streets at night.

I would like to show this Englishman one government worker's home. Perhaps others will do likewise. Someone with organizing talent might devise a plan whereby such hospitality is more generally available to all visiting officials from abroad.

Strength In Federation

"Time and the state of the world are, in fact, nudging free peoples everywhere to federate" was the concluding sentence of your editorial "Newfoundland" on July 28.

If only the political leaders of this country could display the same realistic approach to world affairs as did the writer of this sentence! Instead our leaders, while realizing that the free countries of the world must stand together or fall separately to aggressive totalitarianism, will go no further than to affiliate the United States with other free nations in an alliance under Article 51 of the United Nations Charter. History, on the one hand, has monotonously recorded the failure of alliances to stand up in times of stress; on the other hand, it has recorded nothing but success for sovereign states which have joined in federal union. Is not the lesson clear?

HELEN B. HAMER, Washington.

Fiction Of Hyderabad Sovereignty

Owing to the interest which the princely state of Hyderabad seems to have aroused by its defiance of the government of India and its demand that it accede to India or, at least, democratize its administration before deciding the question of accession, it is desirable to mention a few facts which may clarify the issue and bring it to a proper perspective.

Hyderabad is not a "sovereign state" in the international law sense of the term. It was, in fact, never in its history a sovereign state. In 1720 one Nizam-ul-Mulk was appointed governor of Hyderabad by the Mogul ruler of India. Neither he nor his successors ever claimed an independent sovereign status. In fact—until the British established themselves firmly in India—each of them was careful to have his "viceroyalty" confirmed by a fresh rescript from the Emperor.

In 1858 the British liquidated the Mogul dynasty and thereafter exercised all the paramount rights and powers vesting in the authority they had supplanted. But in the course of their rise to power the British had entered into many commitments with various princes. These were the treaties and engagements which constituted until recently the "charter" of the rights of the Indian princes. None of these princes, says the Butler Committee Report (1928-29), "ever held any international status. Nearly all of them were subordinate or tributary to the Mogul empire or the Sikh kingdom."

As British power in India increased and became, in due course, absolute, the Nizam of Hyderabad ventured to exempt himself from the operation of British "paramountcy" by pleading his status as himself equal to that of the British government. Here are some extracts from the reply of Lord Reading, the viceroy:

"The sovereignty of the British crown is supreme in India, and therefore no ruler of an Indian state can justifiably claim to negotiate with the British gov-

Food Consumption

The Gallup Poll of July 28 underscores the ad-libbed remarks by the President in his message to Congress. One important implication was overlooked, however, in Dr. Gallup's comparison of the weekly food bill with the BLS food-price increase: the amount of food households are consuming today compared to 1942.

If the weekly food bills are converted to index numbers, and the BLS food-price index recomputed to a 1942 base, the following tables result:

If we further divide the food-bill index by the food-price index (and if Dr. Gallup's figures are valid), the quantity of food consumed since the end of the war appears considerably higher than in 1942. For every unit consumed in 1942, the average family ate 1.32 units in 1946, 1.20 units in 1947 and 1.27 units in 1948.

This is not a plea that we eat less. That households are buying more food is probably due to the return of more than 10 million veterans to family dinner tables in 1946-48 compared to 1942. One suggestion of public policy, however, may well be the rekindling by Mr. Porter and Mr. Brannan of the home-grown victory garden movement which was so widespread during the war emergency.

EDGAR BEIGEL, Washington.

Whitehead's theology pretty much eludes me, although it is obviously integral to the system. His God does not exist over and above the system and unaffected by it, but is contained within it and is therefore limited by it, and subject to a creative principle, which transcends even Himself. God, then, belongs to the world of becoming, but Himself creates the world of being. There is, says our philosopher, "a metaphysical need for a principle of determination, but there can be no metaphysical reason for what is determined."

This seems to mean that God is a Supreme Irrationality by Whom all things may be made reasonable. His functions in the system are to conceive and preserve the eternal objects in their absolute totality, and to strive to realize Himself in the actual occasions. He has a primordial and a consequent nature, which seems to be a way of saying that He is at once spiritual and physical. He can never be fully apprehended and is apparently incapable of apprehending Himself. Thus the problem of evil is disposed of by the denial of divine omniscience. Religion becomes "the vision of something which stands beyond, behind and within the passing flux of immediate things; something which is real yet waiting to be realized... something whose possession is the final good, and yet is beyond all reach; something which is the ultimate ideal, and the hopeless quest." And here it strikes me that Whitehead has attempted yet another tour de force of reconciliation—in this case, of monotheism and pantheism.

The Organic Universe

SCIENCE AND THE MODERN WORLD: LOWELL LECTURES, 1925, by Alfred North Whitehead. (Penguin Books, 35 cents.)

When Professor Whitehead died it was pretty generally agreed that he had been the most important thinker of his generation, indeed, one of the great systematic philosophers. There was a good deal of vagueness, however, when it came to saying precisely what his philosophy was. The reason of this, I suspect, was that not many of Professor Whitehead's readers could be sure that they knew what he meant, and that the few who were sure felt obliged to explain it in a jargon that was, if anything, more abstruse and intricate than his own. I have myself a certain weakness for this sort of stuff, as some men have for whisky and others for women, but I confess that there are whole pages of Process and Reality of which I can make neither head nor tail; nor have I found anyone who can elucidate them for me. This difficulty, of course, results from the professor's distrust of conventional philosophical language and for that matter of language in general, natural enough in one who held that nothing concrete exists save in relation to something else and that, since these relationships are constantly changing, nothing is the same at any two instants. Thus in order to assure himself that he was not committing the deadly sin of "verbalizing," that is, of confusing words and ideas, Professor Whitehead felt obliged to devise an idiom peculiar to himself. And yet when he was speaking to a general audience rather than to the members of his trade, when he was not, so to speak, wrestling for his credit, Professor Whitehead could permit himself an almost journalistic lucidity. Thus the system elaborated in Process and Reality becomes more intelligible if read in the light of books like Adventures of Ideas, Religion in the Making and Science and the Modern World; and the appearance of the last named in this popular chapbook edition suggests that some are now ready to make the effort.

The raw outlines at least of the system in which Professor Whitehead strove to reconcile Bergson and Plato, the world of incessant flux and the world of unchanging realities, the contingent and the absolute, are, fairly said, fair game. The system involves a repudiation of the whole notion of "substance," which has dominated philosophical thought since Aristotle and the substitution for it of the notion of "organism." Accordingly, we are transported from the old universe of form and matter to a new universe of "actual entities" and "eternal objects," which the professor defines as "mathematical entities, hazy if not more in harmony with the new physics. Now an 'actual entity' corresponds to what naive or popular or old-fashioned people might call a particular thing. Its particularity is, however, a mere fiction, since it is always acting and being acted upon and therefore always changing, and exists in short only in relation to other entities. Moreover, it is not only what it is but also what it was and what it will be. It is a kind of person or monad consisting of nothing but windows with apparently no panes. An actual entity or occasion is indeed actual only once and is never repeated; having achieved actuality it is immediately dissolved to become part of some other entity like a picture formed by the flames in the hearth. The "eternal objects" correspond more or less to the "universals" of the realists. They are abstract in the sense that they are not conceived without relation to actual entities although they are never really separable from them, and in the sense that their identities remain steadfast amid the incessant flux. Unlike the eternal objects the universe enters into the actual occasions (in-gression) and seek to direct the patterns of change. The dynamism of this profane universe is appetite or feeling, conscious and unconscious. Each occasion is no more than a unity of feeling and out of the feelings of actual entities and of eternal objects for themselves and each other arise new occasions.

Whitehead's theology pretty much eludes me, although it is obviously integral to the system. His God does not exist over and above the system and unaffected by it, but is contained within it and is therefore limited by it, and subject to a creative principle, which transcends even Himself. God, then, belongs to the world of becoming, but Himself creates the world of being. There is, says our philosopher, "a metaphysical need for a principle of determination, but there can be no metaphysical reason for what is determined."

This seems to mean that God is a Supreme Irrationality by Whom all things may be made reasonable. His functions in the system are to conceive and preserve the eternal objects in their absolute totality, and to strive to realize Himself in the actual occasions. He has a primordial and a consequent nature, which seems to be a way of saying that He is at once spiritual and physical. He can never be fully apprehended and is apparently incapable of apprehending Himself. Thus the problem of evil is disposed of by the denial of divine omniscience. Religion becomes "the vision of something which stands beyond, behind and within the passing flux of immediate things; something which is real yet waiting to be realized... something whose possession is the final good, and yet is beyond all reach; something which is the ultimate ideal, and the hopeless quest." And here it strikes me that Whitehead has attempted yet another tour de force of reconciliation—in this case, of monotheism and pantheism.

Premature Showdown

AS WE wait for the response to the representations which we are making in Moscow, the most favorable omen is that the Russian command in the Berlin area have thus far refrained from interfering with the air lift. Thus far, therefore, there have been no collisions, crashes and casualties. This reflects at least a tacit understanding that for the time being the Russians are not to block Berlin completely by closing the air corridors, and that we are not to push convoys through the ground blockade.

Both sides have stopped just short of the action which would surely precipitate violence—the Russians from bringing on a battle in the air, we from bringing on a battle on the ground.

This leaves the struggle still within the realm of diplomacy.

BUT, none the less, the diplomatic situation is very serious, our position in Berlin is deteriorating rapidly. For while we are not being driven out of Berlin, the air lift, though spectacular and efficient, is quite incapable of sustaining the economic life of our sectors of Berlin. On the other hand we are not prepared for the general negotiations which we have been compelled to offer in order to extricate ourselves from the Berlin predicament.

The crux of our problem is that because of a miscalculation risk taken by Mr. Marshall and Mr. Bevin we have been brought prematurely to the great, the ultimately unavoidable, and the necessary showdown with the Soviet Union about the future of Germany and of Europe. We were not able to deliver an ultimatum about Berlin because western Europe is in no condition to face a war. On the other hand, we are not ready for serious negotiations because the great constructive projects of the western powers, which were designed to prepare a general European settlement, are nowhere near achievement, and therefore, a miscalculation to precipitate a European crisis this summer by insisting on the London agreements to establish a western German state.

THAT decision not only led directly to the Berlin crisis, as Mr. Marshall and Mr. Bevin were repeatedly warned that it would, but it has also impaired the plans and the prospects for a successful European settlement.

The European Recovery Program, if it is to be anything more than another American gift, required a restoration of European trade between the industrial West, the industrial East, and the industrial South. It required also a restoration of trade with southeast Asia, one of the important dollar-earning regions of the western European powers. But the Dutch position in Indonesia, the French position in Indo-China, the British position in Burma and Malaya, are most unpromising. It was all the more important that trade with eastern Europe should be promoted, that in return for exports of food and raw materials, the eastern countries should receive machinery which enables them to increase their production.

The idea that a western German state could be set up this summer and made prosperous, with a frontier in the middle of Germany, was certainly no contribution to the economic revival of Europe. It is difficult to understand the reasoning of governments which could decide on the political partition of Germany at the very moment when their economic plans were based upon the economic reunion of Germany and Europe.

THE IDEA of Western Union, which was the political complement of the recovery program, called for the formation of a European union in which Germans, and eventually the nations of eastern Europe and of the Danube valley, could participate. But this great constructive project required time to develop. It was impossible to unite even the five Brussels powers quickly. It was certainly impossible to imagine them uniting with a rump and puppet government in Frankfurt. Even on the lowest terms, that of a military alliance against Soviet expansion, the fact was that the Western Union could not become a military power in less than two or three years, and that American strategic doctrine and the character of American armament were quite unsuited to the defense of western Europe against an invasion.

The project, therefore, of Western Union as the nuclear alliance of a European union demanded a diplomatic policy designed to postpone, not to precipitate, the great showdown with the Russians. Until substantial progress had been made under the recovery program in tying together Europe by trade agreements, and on the political side in making political union in the West more than a meager blueprint, the Russians had much to lose by a showdown. When we consider that besides all this, we are in the midst of an election which will almost certainly bring about a change of administration, the only sensible course for this summer was to temporize.

IT IS the fashion to say that the situation in Germany was so bad that something had to be done about it. Something did indeed have to be done about it, though under military occupation and with Germany divided, not very much that will last can be done. It was certainly not necessary to jump out of the frying pan of German prostration into the fire of a European crisis. The alleged remedy—a western German state—will not cure the disease of western Germany; our Germans will still have to be subsidized in order to maintain ever a low standard of life, and German productivity will not be enhanced by holding a series of German elections in which the Communists, the Nazis, and the well-meaning, outfeeling Christian Democrats and Social Democrats are plunged into a furious struggle.

Whatever the results of all that unnecessary and premature political excitement, they will not be profitable or pleasant. The revival of German political agitation could well have been postponed, therefore, until Europe is sufficiently organized to readmit the Germans into the councils of Europe. To turn on the tap of German politics under present conditions, to excite the Germans before they can have real responsibility, while they are occupied, while they are subsidized, while they are divided, while they are the stakes of a world-wide struggle of the great powers, is—let us say—naïve.

IT WILL NOT be easy to repair the mistake. But somehow, that is what we shall have to do.

Federal Mediators Hope To Settle Maritime Dispute

By the United Press

Government labor experts yesterday hoped for a settlement this week of the East Coast maritime dispute. A settlement, they said, would be the key to averting a nationwide shipping strike next month.

Federal mediation officials will make a new attempt in New York today to obtain an agreement between the East and Gulf Coast shipping companies and the National Maritime Union (CIO).

They believe a settlement might provide a pattern for ending the dispute among other CIO unions and an independent union on the East and West Coasts. All of the unions are banned by Taft-Hartley law injunctions from striking before September 2.

A deadlock over union insistence on retention of present hiring halls may be broken by some formula such as settled the captive coal mine strike three weeks ago, informed sources said. That would, in effect, continue the hiring hall with the provision that the clause would be modified in accordance with National Labor Relations Board or final Federal court rulings.

Robert N. Denham, general counsel for the Labor Board, has held that the hiring hall is a form of union security prohibited by the Taft-Hartley Law. The issue is now before the full five-man Labor Board for determination.

Federal officials also hope to settle the biggest flurry of small industrial disputes in a month. They said new attempts would be made to end strikes in supplier plants in Michigan that threaten more than 100,000 auto workers.

The series of walkouts involves coal miners in Alabama who staged a safety protest strike Saturday, and electricians in Oak Ridge, Tenn.

Machinist Union Head Does Not Seek New Term

By the United Press

President Harvey W. Brown of the International Association of Machinists does not expect to seek another term in his $12,000-a-year post, he revealed yesterday.

His withdrawal may be the forerunner of several important changes in the Nation's top labor union leadership in the next few months.

Reports are again circulating that William Green, 75-year-old president of the American Federation of Labor, may step aside at his organization's convention in Cincinnati in November. There are also reports that President William Hutchison of the carpenters and Daniel J. Tobin of the teamsters, AFL veterans, may yield their offices.

Textile Union Asks $1.05 Hourly Minimum

New York, Aug. 1 (AP)—The CIO Textile Workers Union of America

has asked the Government to fix a $1.05 minimum hourly wage for woolen and worsted workers employed on Government contract jobs.

Emil Rieve, president of the union, said today the union made the request in a letter to William J. McComb, administrator of the wage and hour division of the Labor Department.

The standard 40-cent hourly minimum now applies to woolen and worsted workers on Government-order jobs.

Woolworth Workers Postpone Strike Action

New York, Aug. 1 (AP)—A CIO wholesale and warehouse workers union local today postponed indefinitely strike action against the F. W. Woolworth Co. stores.

Some 200 Woolworth stores in the United States, in Toronto and Montreal, Canada, and in Havana, Cuba, were picketed yesterday, the union said.

American Vegetarian Repudiates Shaw

New York, Aug. 1 (NYHT)—George Bernard Shaw has been publicly repudiated by the American Vegetarian, despite his claim on his recent 92 birthday that his longevity was due to his vegetarianism. Symon Gould, associate editor of the magazine, wrote Shaw that he was no true vegetarian, because he has admitted taking liver injections for many years and has condoned the killing of animals. Shaw was sternly admonished to eliminate all mention of vegetarianism on future birthdays.

There's something NEW today in Washington banking

To bring you up-to-date banking facilities which adequately reflect the service standards of this bank, we have been engaged for some months in remodeling our Main Office banking room. We now have what we believe to be the finest banking quarters in the District of Columbia.

The entire area previously occupied by tellers' cages has been converted into a spacious and comfortable customers' lobby completely covered with soft, blue-green carpeting. Here you will find suitable accommodations for consultation with our officers—ready assistance in solving your banking problems pleasantly and efficiently.

Friendly teller counters of walnut have been installed on the south and west sides of the floor. They are designed for easy communication between teller and customer and located so that you can complete your transactions with a minimum of delay.

Our safe deposit facilities, too, have been rearranged and modernized to provide the utmost in convenience for you and safety for your valuables.

We cordially invite you to inspect our Main Office at 15th and H Streets, on Monday, August 2, at any time between 9 A.M. and 6 P.M. Our officers and staff will be available to show you the new features which make banking here more convenient and pleasant than ever.

Steel Firms Ask 40% Slash In Eastern Road Freight Rates

Pittsburgh, Aug. 1 (AP)—Two U. S. Steel Corp. subsidiaries have asked Eastern railroads to reduce freight rates approximately 40 percent on iron and steel products moving from the Pittsburgh district to the New York City and Detroit areas.

Benjamin F. Fairless, U. S. Steel president, said today in a statement the proposal was made by the Carnegie-Illinois Steel Corp. and the American Bridge Co. in letters sent to the heads of the Eastern roads.

Fairless declared that "in anticipation of an increasing tendency by steel consumers to divert shipments which formerly moved by rail to other forms of transportation, the railroads in their own interest should favor substantial reductions in their freight rates."

He said the tendency by steel consumers to find other means of transportation had been intensified by the recent change in pricing methods of U. S. Steel from a basing point to a mill basis. Under the old basing point system, the steel companies absorbed the freight costs. The new mill price

Doctor Shortage Could Delay Draft

By Marshall Andrews
Post Reporter

An acute shortage of doctors may delay operation of the 1948 draft unless doctors are drafted, The Washington Post learned yesterday.

The new Selective Service Act, under which registrations start August 30, provides in Section 4 (a):

"No person shall be inducted for training and service until adequate provision shall have been made for . . . medical care and hospital accommodations."

Under that provision, it is felt here, inductions of soldiers likely will be limited strictly by the number of doctors available to provide "adequate . . . medical care."

Needs Far Ahead of Supply

As far as doctors are concerned, the Army and Air Force will need by next July 1 not less than 3900 in addition to those already on duty. In addition, they will need about 1300 interns and residents for graduate professional training program.

Since it started its present intensive campaign for medical reserve officers to volunteer for extended active duty, the Medical Department has accepted an average of 42 qualified doctors a month. This average, totaling some 500 a year, just about makes up for normal losses by death, retirement, resignation and return to inactive duty.

Under the draft act the Army was authorized a strength of 847,000 draftees and 18-year-old trainees and the Air Force a strength of 465,000. With the 3900 doctors it needs, plus 3000 now in service, the Medical Department would have 6900 doctors to care for 1,360,000 troops.

Ratio Unspecified

Although the Medical Department now has abandoned the practice of calculating its needs on the basis of a fixed ratio of doctors to troops, these numbers figure to a ratio of slightly more than 5 doctors to 1000 troops. During World War I, the ratio was 6.5 per 1000; during World War II, 5.3 to 1000; and in the immediately postwar Army, 5 per 1000.

Whether that is an "adequate" ratio for a peacetime Army, the draft act does not say. In World War II, with its 5.3 ratio, less than one man per 1000 died of sickness, as compared with 19 per 1000 in World War I and 65 per 1000 in the Civil War; it was the first war in which fewer men died of disease than from battle wounds.

Likewise, with the World War II ratio of 5.5 doctors, 96 per cent of all wounded who reached medical attention were saved and 70 per cent were returned to duty.

Inducements Offered

In its efforts to make military service attractive for doctors, the Medical Department has gone to lengths heretofore unheard of. It has induced Congress to add a flat $100 a month to all medical officers' pay. It is commissioning medical graduates first lieutenants, giving them a year's internship at $381 a month instead of the $20 or so they might expect in civilian hospitals, and offering half of them a year's residence at the same rank and pay.

It has instituted a general practice course of three years in which the young doctor specializes in 13 branches of medicine and surgery while engaging in resident practice. It has established a system of concentrating in doctors in general and station hospitals instead of assigning them to units in garrison. When units move into the field for training, doctors will be detailed to them, returning them to the hospitals when the units are back in garrison.

A new method of classification has been set up with the aim of enabling doctors entering the service to continue practicing their specialties.

Paper Work Lightened

And finally, the load of administrative detail has been lifted in great measure from the shoulders of medical officers by increasing the number of nonmedical officers responsible for this work. During World War II, there was one administrative officer for every 12 doctors; now the proportion is 1 to 3.

In spite of this, doctors are not volunteering in anything like "adequate" numbers. There appears to remain only a draft of doctors.

Chairman Gurney (R., S. Dak.) of the Senate Armed Services Committee, presenting the conference report on the draft bill, said:

"The conference felt we could not set a special category to come under the responsibilities of the draft until we found out that volunteers did not come in under the medical and dental provisions."

"The conference felt they would come in, and that at least we would have a chance to look at the situation before we would be compelled to do anything in a mandatory way regarding doctors."

But they won't get the extra $100 a month, Congress reserved that for volunteers.

Togliatti Hits Cabinet Foe

Rome, Aug. 1 (U.P.)—Communist leader Palmiro Togliatti charged today that Interior Minister Mario Scelba, outspoken of Communism, was responsible for the attempt to assassinate him last July 14.

Togliatti asserted the attempt on his life was possible only because of a revival of fascism in Italy. He charged the government had done nothing to "put out the alleged revival of fascism and Scelba was 'ringleader' in the government's do-nothing policy."

Writing in the Communist Party newspaper Unita, Togliatti said the crime was carried out "under the tranquil eye of the state police."

Togliatti, who was discharged from the police yesterday morning, left for Genoa to rest. Unita also announced the formation of a "national solidarity committee" to lead the fight against Premier Alcide de Gasperi's "government of reaction."

More than 20 persons were injured, three seriously, when an unidentified person hurled a hand grenade into a night religious procession at the village of San Martino di Bareggio, near Milan, last night.

Seeing Double at Fort Meade

RAINY SUNDAY—The gentlemen with the feet and the contented look are David (left) and Martin Smith, 19-year-old twins of Cleveland, Ohio, who are taking basic training at Fort Meade, Md. They were among first 100 one-year enlistees on the East Coast. They were 19 the day after induction. The Smith brothers were typical of men yesterday who spent day in doors because of rain.

Woman Leaps To Death

Arlington man, who had been previously married and received a Mexican divorce, according to police, later the couple learned that the divorce decree was not legal, police said.

Because the decree was not legal, Miss Gerson divorced the man, although, according to the letter, she still loved him. She moved to Cincinnati where she remarried about a year ago, the letter told police.

In spite of her remarriage, the Arlington man wrote her constantly, the letter said, and urged her to come back to live with him, according to police. Police said Miss Gerson came to Washington and had been rooming at 3634 Fessenden st. n.w. since June 22.

She was employed as a secretary for a novelty firm, police said. After writing the letter to police, she jumped from the room to her death.

Miss Gerson's brother, Louis Gerson, told The Washington Post that the story told in the letter was all true. He stated that the letter said the man "drove" her to do it, and added that the Arlington man constantly wrote her while she was in Cincinnati with her husband.

Gerson stated that the Cincinnati marriage was a happy one and that the Arlington man had broken it up.

In the letter, Miss Gerson willed her possessions, including some stocks in a Cincinnati safe deposit box, to a sister "in appreciation of her devotion."

The Guild Is Busy But Elsewhere

By Richard L. Coe

THOUGH THE CLOSING of the National means the Theater Guild will be losing its third largest audience (New York and Chicago have, respectively 18,950 and 16,784 subscribers), next season will be the Guild's biggest.

By adding nine new cities to its subscription lists, and including a jump in subscribers in the 21 already on the rolls, the Guild will have about $2,500,000 worth of presold tickets by the time the new season opens. There's nothing to compare with this anywhere.

The busy Lawrence Langner, codirector of the Guild with Theresa Helburn, was in town for a few hours last week, checking up on "Oklahoma!" taking in Jose Ferrer's performance at Olney, talking of the musical version of "The Pursuit of Happiness," which he wrote with his wife, Armina Marshall, and just missing his local manager, Bess Davis Schreiner.

Miss Schreiner, too, is busy these days. She's heading the drives in two of the Guild's nine new cities, Wilmington and Richmond. You'll not find her in her office at the National this week, but, vows Miss S., come next week she'll be resuming her Tuesday-Thursday-Saturday office hours for her 15,900 local customers.

A good deal of the Guild's new spots are southwards, Dallas, Ft. Worth, Houston, San Antonio and Austin and we'll bet the success Margo Jones has made in her two Texas seasons has done a lot to open the Guild's eyes to untapped audiences down there. Miss Jones' Texas season will start November 1, by which time she will have launched the new Tennessee Williams play, "Summer and Smoke," in New York, for the first performance of which she attracted many a northerner to Dallas last week.

So, though theater languishes here and the Guild evidently is unable to solve the problem of finding a capital showcase, it seems to have plenty of energy in other directions. Too bad more of it can't be exerted here.

FRANK BUCK will be the week's top theatrical visitor. "Theatrical? . . . Yes . . . His 'Bring 'Em Back Alive' will be revived beginning Thursday at the Metropolitan. . . It's 16 years since this adventure first hit the screens but his search through the animal kingdom remains a byword. . . Buck arrives Wednesday, will do some radio talks and visit Dr. Mann's ever-mounting collections at the zoo. . . The Texan's fabled travels captivated us all when we were younger and the moviegoers who've come along since no doubt will find his Malay trek as fascinating as their elders did.

IT'S "YEARS AGO" beginning Wednesday night at the Cross Roads, not "Over 21." Ruth Gordon's earlier comedy which already has been a Cross Roads hit. . . This is the autobiographical comedy which tells of Miss Gordon's efforts to leave home for the stage. . . Fredric March and his wife, Florence Eldridge played it in Gotham, though you may have seen its original version at the National as "Miss Jones." . . The cast includes Stanley Sweetey, Ann Clooney, Jane Drew, Betsy Wetherill, Aurilla Sweetey, George Grizzard, Jim O'Neill, Margaret Ogden, and Brad Voliva under the direction of Forney Reese.

HAZEL KENYON MARKEL WTOP's busy voice, is taking on another job. . . It's only temporary but will demand plenty of fast hopping. . . Hazel will be in Elizabeth Bergner's supporting cast for "Escape Me Never" for the Olney week beginning tomorrow. . . As Hazel Kenyon, the local director of Public Affairs for CBS did stage and screen work before entering radio. . . Hazel's schedule this week is tough, eight performances at Olney, five regular broadcasts and her weekly television show on opening night. . . Ap-

Virginians to Vote In 2-Party Primary

Sees Relatives

Truman Has Quiet Day in Independence

Independence, Mo., Aug. 1 (AP).—President Truman spent a care-free Sabbath today in his old home town.

Neighbors, who gave him a warm welcome when he arrived, made no attempt to interrupt his privacy.

Mayor Roger Sermon, one of his closest friends, spent most of the morning mowing the lawn in front of his home. The mayor said the townfolks "just suppose he came in for a rest."

"We figure he just wants to hang around home until time to vote Tuesday and that he doesn't want any too much excitement."

Mr. Truman flew into Missouri last night to vote in the Democratic primary Tuesday. He plans to ballot in the Blue Township Precinct at the Memorial Building at 7:30 a. m. (CST) and will leave for Washington in the DC-6, the Independence, 30 minutes later, from the Fairfax Airport in Kansas City, Kans.

"I've got a Congress on my hands," he told reporters last night. If Mr. Truman is taking sides in the Democratic primary he hasn't made it known officially.

There was no indication that he talked politics with anyone today. He arose around 9 o'clock, very late for him, and had breakfast with his family. About 30 minutes later he took the wheel of a convertible for a 15-mile drive to Grandview, accompanied by a single Secret Service agent.

There he visited his sister, Miss Mary Jane Truman, and his brother, J. Vivian Truman, and his brother's family.

European Aid Nears Billion

The United States outlay for Marshall Plan aid to Europe is expected to climb above the billion-dollar mark this week.

Economic Cooperation Administrator Paul G. Hoffman reported yesterday that last week's purchase authorization of $72,861,232 raised the ECA cash grant total to $907,883,934.

Britain, omitted from Hoffman's summaries for four weeks, got the major share of the new authorizations—$20,500,000. The increase raised the British aid total to $246,586,200 and put Britain back at the top of the list as the number one beneficiary.

Austria, Denmark, France, Great Britain, Norway, Greece, Italy, China, the Netherlands, the British-American and the French occupation zones in Germany were included on the new authorization list.

Heavy shipments of wheat and wheat flour featured the new list. Shipments worth about 36 million dollars accounted for more than half of the new community purchases.

Purchase of $50,000 worth of radium by France from Belgium was one unusual transaction approved. France also received ECA approval for the purchase of $33,750 worth of raw cocaine from Peru.

Iron and steel mill materials worth more than three million dollars were approved for delivery to Britain.

Man's Foes Pass Hat; Finance $250 Killing

Manila, Aug. 1 (AP).—The enemies of Artemio de la Cruz were poor, but they passed the hat and made up a $250 kitty with which they hired a gunman who killed him, police in suburban Quezon City announced.

They said a suspect had confessed the slaying. He told them contributions by individuals were as little as $5 each.

They were not clear on why the victim had acquired so many enemies.

Poll Tax Bill Faces Test This Week

The Senators said they had thought up some new questions.

Federal Reserve Chairman Thomas B. McCabe was invited before the House committee. He told Senators last week he favors tighter controls over bank and consumer credits.

While the Republicans are sticking by their promise to listen and consider any anti-inflation proposals or other emergency matters sent up by President Truman, there is little expectation that he will be voted any new powers, with the possible exception of some additional authority over credits.

Southerners Deny Filibuster

Leading Senators meanwhile couldn't agree whether a filibuster against the poll tax bill actually is in progress.

Wherry told a reporter: "There is no doubt that it's a filibuster and we are going to try to crack it." But Senator Russell (D., Ga.), quarterback for the Southerners, denied that a filibuster has started—yet. He said "the Republicans have done just as much talking as we have."

If GOP leaders decide on day and night sessions, Russell promised, "we'll be here."

He pointed out that only three of the Dixie orators have even made the first of the two speeches allowed each Senator under Senate rules. They are Senators Stennis (D., Miss.), Stewart (D., Tenn.) and Maybank (D., S. C.).

"We have 18 others who probably will have some legitimate discussion to offer," Russell said. "And before we get through there may be some Republicans joining our side of the argument."

Russell said he expects GOP leaders to try for cloture but confidently predicted they will not get it.

Dixiecrats Considering House Coup in January

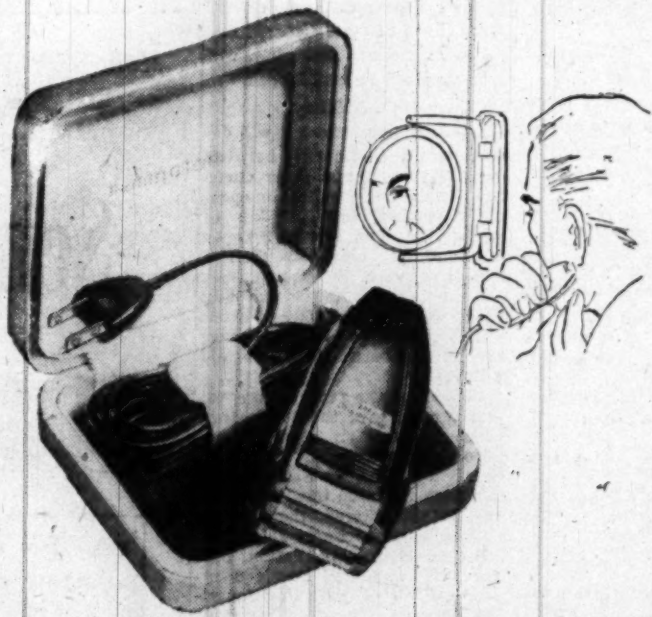

Southern Democrats are considering a little reorganization of their own in the House when the new Congress convenes next January.

The victims of the projected party "purge" may be Democrats from north of the Mason and Dixon Line—the so-called Truman and New Deal wing of the party. The Southerners are confident they will be in the majority among mona. No fakirs, quacks, frauds or shady trance mediums need apply.

Parapsychologists Organize; Seek Poltergeists and Dowsters

Perhaps you are gifted with extra-sensory perception. Maybe you are gifted or cursed, with premonitions that come true. Or maybe you can cite instances of spontaneous experiences, such as picking up the tune your psychic partner stopped humming far beyond the reach of ordinary hearing.

If so, you, too, have powers the group would like to study.

The Society for Parapsychology group of organizers held its first meeting here on July 12, according to its organizing chairman, Richard C. Darnell, physicist. Its purpose, said the chairman, is to experiment in the highly specialized field, and establish its values on a sound scientific basis.

Dr. Rhine to Speak

First main meeting of the group will be an all-day symposium here on September 15, concurrent with meetings of the American Association for the Advancement of Science. Feature papers will be presented by Drs. J. B. Rhine, author of the thought-provoking book "Reach of the Mind," and J. G. Pratt, both of Duke University Laboratory of Parapsychology.

Speaking of subjects the members would like to study, Darnell bemoaned the fact that Washington is lacking in poltergeists and in dowsters, though he said he heard reports one of the latter operates in up-State Maryland.

Poltergeists, of which England seems to have as many as the country has old castles, are ghosts who move things. Not just plain apparitions who vanish without other evidence than twilight sight, but good substantial spirits who move teacups, bang bookcases or show some other manifestation of power over matter.

Dowsters Defy Understanding

Dowsters are those persons who seek ores, or water with forked sticks. The fact that their sticks over ore or water more times than chance alone can account for indicates they possess some power that transcends normal understanding, Darnell said. A water-witcher is a dowster who concentrates on finding—water, of course.

With the Washington-Baltimore market low in dowsters and poltergeists, Darnell said, members of the new society will probably concentrate on studying the powers of concentration.

That is, he explained, they'll pretty well follow experiments similar to ones under way at Duke University's lab. These include precognition of cards, the ability to foretell what card will appear and to foretell them far more often than can be explained by the mere laws of chance.

To Cast the Die

Other experiments will be conducted with dice, in effort to explain how some people by "wishing" for certain numbers can cause them to appear more often than they'd turn up under chance alone, sometimes called the free will of determination. Ouija boards are supposed to be operated on similar principle.

If you face WASHDAY once a week (or oftener)

...it will pay you to discover the "do-more" soap that makes washdays easier

Mrs. B. M. Angell, consulting home economist (and housewife), got exciting results like these in recent washing tests...

LOOK what one pkg. of "do-more" SU-PURB can do for you:

266 DISH TOWELS

One pkg. of SU-PURB will clean 266 dish towels—or 114 white shirts or 1200 handkerchiefs

40 WORK PANTS (greasy)

There's cleansing power enough in one 24 oz. pkg. of SU-PURB to wash 40 pairs of really dirty work pants!

480 BABY T-SHIRTS

One pkg. of SU-PURB will wash 480 T-shirts

1090 NYLONS

A pkg. of SU-PURB is enough to "do" 1090 nylons—or 545 panties or bras

Make your own washday tests—you'll be amazed!

Every granule of SU-PURB does more work for you because every granule of SU-PURB is actually SOAPIER—by laboratory test

If YOURS is an average family, you wash about 32 lbs. of laundry each week. Goodness knows you can't avoid washdays, but the right soap can make them a lot less of a chore. You'll agree to that the very first time you use SU-PURB—the "do-more" soap that's made soapier, to bustle you through the hardest wash.

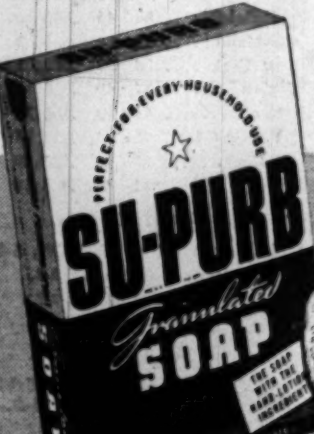

Tests show SU-PURB is noticeably soapier. At our request, a firm of independent chemists has repeatedly analyzed SU-PURB. At the same times, this firm has analyzed three of the leading granulated soaps on the market. Result? These impartial analyses confirm what your own use will show you: SU-PURB granulated SOAP is noticeably superior to the others tested in "soapiness."

Judge SU-PURB at our risk. Look for SU-PURB next time you shop. It's featured at Safeway stores. Buy at our risk, and make your own washday test!

Unless you are more than pleased—simply return remaining soap in SU-PURB package to the store where you bought it, for a refund of twice the purchase price. This offer is for a limited time only.

You'll find SU-PURB is "smoother"—and wonderfully kind to your hands, as well! That's because SU-PURB has up to 17 times more of the protective "hand lotion ingredient."

BEST SOAP BUY IN TOWN!
You not only use less SU-PURB—you also pay PREMIUM LESS and get a full 24-oz. pkg. for your money.

A's Move Into First Place as Boston Loses Twice

This Morning

With Shirley Povich

THE HARRY GILMER case has suddenly become a hot potato in the lap of Bert Bell, commissioner of the National Football League, which is being threatened with court action by the Chicago Tribune Charities, Inc.

The next move is Bell's. He can order the Redskins to send the protesting Gilmer to Chicago for participating in the College All-Star Cardinals game. Or he can risk a contract violation by the NFL by doing nothing about it.

Gilmer isn't compelled to play, even on Bell's order, however. With permission of the Redskins he can refuse and accept the league's penalty of being barred from the club's exhibition games this season. Such a course would not involve the league in any contract violation.

Violation of the league's contract with the Tribune Charities would not begin in any event, until the Redskins used Gilmer in one of their preseason exhibitions. If he stays out of the Chicago game, any court action would be stayed until Gilmer and the Redskins flouted the league's penalty.

IN ITS CONTRACT with the Tribune Charities, the league agreed to deliver to the game any player who was invited. The league's alternative was clear-cut. Any invited player who didn't accept, could not be used in exhibitions. Gilmer, however, was in his early teens when the league and the Tribune entered into that contract years ago, and he was scarcely a party to it.

The Redskins think that Gilmer can beg off and show a solid case for himself. First, they say, he is entitled to insurance protection against injury for the life of his Redskins contract, a figure in excess of the $8000 policy by which he is covered in the game. The Redskins point out they have him insured for the entire amount of his long-term contract against injury in Redskins games.

The Tribune, however, claims that its action in insuring the players to the amount of $8000 is a voluntary and generous gesture of its own. Under its contract with the league, it isn't called upon to make such an outlay.

A REDSKIN SPOKESMAN declares there is no similarity between Gilmer's refusal to play in the charity game and Bob Feller's run-out on the All-Star baseball game which drew down such wide censure against the Cleveland pitching ace.

"Feller was playing in a game in which the proceeds went to the ball players' pension fund," he says. "As one of the high-salaried stars, he had an obligation to help lesser-paid players increase their pension fund. The same kind of a case can't be made against Gilmer. There is no pension fund involved."

"The game is a sell-out, with or without Gilmer. His absence wouldn't hurt the gate receipts for charity a nickel's worth. And his presence wouldn't mean any more money for either the college All-Stars or the Champion Cardinals. And at Chicago he'd miss three weeks of valuable practice in the intricate T-formation of the Redskins, and wouldn't be doing his duty to the Redskins owners or his fellow players."

BUT MR. ARCH WARD, sports editor of the Tribune, is prepared to get tough about it nevertheless and declares "it will be turned over to our law department if Gilmer stays out of the game and the Redskins use him in exhibitions." He declares that would be a clear-cut contract violation and that the NFL won't get away with it.

It's something to concern League Commissioner Bell. A breach of contract would be costly to his league. Last year the Bears got $56,000 as their end of the game's receipts, and the league treasury itself profited $16,000. Despite some sentiment against the game by the league's club owners, Bell is in favor of continuing the contract.

In any event, if the NFL pulls out, the Chicago Tribune would not be completely unhappy. Ward would invite the All-America Conference to send its champion team to the game, confident in the belief it would accept eagerly, and certain that such as the Cleveland Browns or New York Yankees would fill Soldiers Field, and good riddance to the NFL.

Skins Make Camp

Baugh Easily Spotted, But Gilmer's Taken for Waterboy

Los Angeles, Aug. 1.—A businesslike band of Washington Redskins pitched tepees on the campus of nearby Occidental College this afternoon less than an hour after their Santa Fe rattler tumbled into town.

Most of the afternoon was spent in trying to cram 52-size tackles into 46-size streamlined football pants, but Coach Turk Edwards and his muscular minions will get down to brass tacks tomorrow.

Turk has ordered double doses of daily drills, the first at 9 a. m., the next at 2:30.

"We'll follow this routine until we're in shape," said Edwards. "Yes, we'll even be out there working on Sundays until further notice."

The 'Skins don't open their National Football League season against the Pittsburgh Steelers until September 26, but there's no time to lose because there are five preseason scuffles on the agenda.

On August 26 they'll stage their annual East-West intra squad game at Long Beach. Then comes the annual game with the Los Angeles Rams in the Memorial Coliseum the night of September 2, sponsored by the Los Angeles Times.

Four days later they take on the world champion Chicago Cardinals at Denver. Green Bay will oppose them at Birmingham September 11, and the final exhibition will bring the Redskins and Chicago Bears into action at Baltimore September 19.

Gilmer "Water Boy" Twenty-six players detained today, along with Owner George P. Marshall, Coach Edwards and his staff. Sixteen Redskins, who either lived on the coast or preceded the main party here, already had picked out their bunks at camp.

As the party filled through the station onlookers had no trouble singling out Sammy Baugh. The Texan was attired in a Stetson, blue cotton shirt and jeans and an elegant pair of cowboy boots.

His understudy, Harry Gilmer, was harder to recognize, as the slightly built Alabama walked along beside gigantic Jim Peebles, somebody said.

That kid must be the water-boy."

A Win in 9th Nats Divide With Browns By 8-5, 4-3

By Morris Siegel
Post Reporter

St. Louis, Aug. 1.—Victims of the home run pitching of Early Wynn and Tom Ferrick in the opener, the Nats became the beneficiaries of the base-on-balls performance of a pair of Browns' hurlers in the nightcap and gained an even break in today's double-header.

Wynn and Ferrick served up three home run pitches to the Browns, who whacked out an 8-5 victory in the first game. In the afterpiece, Ned Garver and Al Widmar had trouble finding home plate and the Nats won by 4-3.

Although Gil Coan clouted his seventh homer of the year and Earl Wooten batted in two runs with a pair of singles in the second game, the saddest blow for the 7502 customers was Tom McBride's ninth-inning single, a tap which sent Johnny Sullivan home with the tie-breaking run.

A Win That Canceled Merits McBride's single brought Milo Candini a victory he deserved for his splendid relief job after rescuing Earl Harritt in the sixth inning. Candini allowed no hits in the three innings he worked. He was removed for a pinchhitter in the eighth and Ray Scarborough finished for the Nats, striking out Roy Partee to wind up the game with the Browns' tying run on first base.

Former Nat Gerry Priddy, Al Zarilla and Rookie Dick Kokos were the big noises of St. Louis' triumph in the first game. Zarilla smashed a two-run homer in the seventh when the Browns broke a 4-4 deadlock with three runs. Kokos reached Wynn for a homer in the second and Priddy's two-run single, struck in the third, brought the Browns a 4-3 lead and also removed Wynn from the premises.

Al Kozar, with four of Washington's nine hits, delivered two runs in the opener, one with a single and the other with a ninth-inning double.

But the work of Kozar went for naught as Wynn, staked 3 on two runs lead, and Ferrick, for whom the Nats had tied the game, couldn't halt the Browns.

Ferrick's downfall came in the seventh inning and he brought it on himself, walking Relief Pitcher Joe Ostrowski. Bob Dillinger forced Ostrowski, but Ferrick wasn't that lucky with Zarilla who parked his fourth homer deep in the right field pavilion.

Zarilla's clout made it 7-4, St. Louis. The Browns tacked on their final run off Dick Welteroth in the eighth, while Kozar's double delivered the fifth Nat tally in the ninth.

McBride's Hit Settles It Harritt's third attempt as a starting pitcher in the second game was ill-fated from the beginning when he walked two and hit Don Lund to force in the first Brown run.

Wooten got that one back for him in the second with his first single, but Harritt lost command again in the third as two Browns scampers home, one on a passed ball by Rookie Catcher Len Orliko and another on Kokos' double. Coan reduced the deficit with his homer in the fourth, a drive that cleared the right field pavilion. Wooten made a tie game of it in the sixth when he singled home Mickey Vernon, who had walked.

Wooten's hit drove out Garver in favor of Widmar, who stuck around until the ninth when he walked Sullivan and Coan to set the stage for McBride's game-winning hit.

With the series deadlocked at 2-2, the clubs met in the rubber match tomorrow night. Sid Hudson goes for the Nats with Bill Kennedy, a southpaw, serving for the Browns.

Hockey Lions Pick New Pilot Frank M. Beiser of New Haven, Conn., yesterday was named coach of the Washington Lions of the American Hockey League by Owner Mike Uline.

Beiser succeeds Jack Riley who recently left to become player-coach of the Tulsa Oilers of the United States Hockey League.

A 6-foot-2-inch, 185-pounder, Beiser has played and coached hockey professionally since 1934 when he joined the Hershey Bears of the Eastern League.

He coached the Buffalo Bisons to the championship of the American League in 1946 and last season won the Eastern League title with the Baltimore Clippers.

Lions Manager Paul Rothgeb reported Beiser and assistants Bill Cowley and Lou Trudel will conduct a talent search in Canada before reporting to the Lions' training camp at Waterloo, Ontario, September 20.

Olympic Track Is Road to Rank For Lt. Zatopek Prague, Aug. 1.—Gen. Ludvik Svoboda, Czechoslovakian Minister of Defense, today promoted Emil Zatopek, Czech army officer who set an Olympic record in winning the 10,000-meter run at London.

The Czech army has three grades of lieutenants and Zatopek was advanced from the second grade to the highest grade.

The government yesterday sent its congratulations to Zatopek. Svoboda said the promotion was for "exemplary representation of his country abroad."

Macks Beat Tigers, 4-2; Marchildon Beans Fan

Detroit, Aug. 1.—(AP)—The Philadelphia Athletics took possession of the American League lead today by beating the Detroit Tigers, 4 to 2, while Boston, erstwhile pace-setter, was losing a twin bill at Cleveland.

Phil Marchildon took credit for his eighth victory, taming the Tigers with five hits, but had to have help in the ninth from Charles (Bubba) Harris when he walked three men and hit another to force a run across.

Marchildon walked seven men altogether and let one pitch get away so badly it beamed a fan, Sam Wexler, of 420 Islington st., Toledo, Ohio, sitting 10 rows back in the stands between the plate and third base. He was taken to the Briggs Stadium first-aid room but wasn't hurt.

The Philadelphia Frenchman thoroughly deserved the victory, however, in the manner in which he pitched his way out of frequent trouble.

Ferris Bain, sturdy Philadelphia first baseman, hit a two-run homer and three singles to lead the A's 13-hit attack that tagged Paul (Dizzy) Trout with his eleventh loss. Bain drove in three runs and scored two himself.

Americans May Add 800-Meter, Pole Vault, Discus Titles Today

By Gayle Talbot

London, Aug. 1.—America's Olympic athletes, who collected five gold medals and an amazing total of 94 points on Saturday, will be shooting for more of both tomorrow when the 1948 games are continued after a day's rest brought on by the British blue laws.

The 800-meter run, the pole vault and the discus throw are down for settlement in track and field, and a sweep of the three events virtually would assure Uncle Sam's muscle men a continuation of the championship of this phase of the games they have held since the world games were revived in 1896.

Only the women's 100-meter swim title will be decided in the tank tomorrow and the Red, White and Blue girls aren't expected to molest the Danish ladies in this. But the men's 400-meter trials will be run off at 2 p. m. (EST).

The preliminaries in the 10,000-meter walk, originally scheduled for 5 a. m. (EST) tomorrow were postponed until Tuesday.

Bout in Jeopardy Doctors Pass On Charles Here Today

This is the day on which a definite decision is supposed to be made as to whether the Ezzard Charles-Jimmy Bivins heavyweight fight goes on at Griffith Stadium the night of August 9.

Charles has been ordered to report to the District Boxing Commission and be examined by three physicians, Drs. Don Knowlton, Leon Gordon and Clark Halstead, at 1 p. m., in Halstead's office.

Charles has requested that the fight be postponed, claiming that he is not in shape because of a glandular ailment. He already has been granted a postponement of one week. The fight originally was scheduled for August 2.

Charles' managers have said publicly they will abide by the decision of the District commission's doctors.

If the doctors find that Charles is in condition to oppose Bivins, Charles presumably will be ordered to enter the ring August 9.

Mintz Here, Says He 'Wants to Be Fair'

Jake Mintz, manager of Ezzard Charles, arrived in Washington last night for today's appearance at his hearing before the District boxing commission doctors.

In a flow of words, Mintz made these points:

1. He wants to do the fair thing, both for the Variety Club, sponsor of the show, and his fighter, "who has the chance of a lifetime to become the world's heavyweight champion by beating Jersey Joe Walcott in New York, September 22."
2. If the boxing commission's doctors say that Charles is able to fight Jimmy Bivins here August 9, then "Charles will fight him... but Charles' hip injury is so bad he can't bend over to tie his shoes."
3. If the August 9 fight with Bivins is postponed, "I promise to bring Charles to Washington for his first bout after he whips Walcott."

Charles did not accompany Mintz. The fighter will arrive this morning.

If the doctors decide that Charles could not be ready to fight Bivins by next week, the fight apparently will have to be called off.

Matchmaker Gabe Menendez said yesterday that the next possible date on which Charles and Bivins could meet at Griffith Stadium is September 13. The park simply will not be available to him again until that date.

A September 13 booking looks impossible in view of word from New York yesterday that the Twentieth Century Sporting Club definitely plans a bout between Charles and Jersey Joe Walcott at Yankee Stadium, September 22.

Jake Mintz, manager of Charles, said in Pittsburgh yesterday that he has been conferring with the Twentieth Century Club on the Walcott fight.

The Associated Press quoted Mintz:

"Charles will be available for Walcott any time the Twentieth Century Club wants him. We've practically agreed on the fight and there will be no difficulty on financial terms. The fight's about as good as set."

Bivins' handlers leaped into the controversy yesterday. Manager Leonard Shane said:

"The last thing that Charles wants to do is to meet Bivins—especially the Bivins that he's scheduled to face next week. Jimmy knows that a win over Charles would mean a fat future. Bivins would be in a position to step into such fights as New York promoters now are lining up for Charles."

Promoters of the Charles-Bivins fight say they will bring suit against Charles for no less than $100,000 if Charles runs out on the fight.

The show is a benefit affair under the auspices of the Variety Club.

Giants Sign Two Southpaw Batters

New York, Aug. 1 (AP)—Answering Manager Leo Durocher's plea for more left-handed hitters, the New York Giants today announced the purchase of rookie outfielder Don Mueller from Jersey City, and veteran utility infielder Lonnie Frey from Minneapolis.

Mueller, a 21-year-old flycatcher, has a 343 batting record for the French French swimming team. Teammates said that 19-year-old Jany, France's No. 1 swimmer who failed to place in his 100-meter specialty yesterday, was suffering from a broken heart. French 100 backstroke Georges Vallery said, "Jany's morale is broken."

"He is suffering from very sore muscles in his arms and shoulders and hopes to sleep it off. He will probably compete in the remainder of his events, but we doubt he has any heart left to make a showing."

Heartsick, Weary Jany Quits Bed to Swim Again

LONDON, Aug. 1 (AP)—Alex Jany, suffering from a "broken heart," was unable to drag his sore body from bed today to attend a workout with the rest of the French swimming team.

Cards' 4-Run Fifth Inning Gives Them 9-6 Victory Over Braves

Bostonians' Play Sloppy; Pollet Wins

Boston, Aug. 1 (AP)—The alert St. Louis Cardinals today inflicted a 9-6 thumping on the Boston Braves who played rather sloppy baseball as starting Pitcher Nelson Potter suffered his first National League defeat before a paid crowd of 26,324. The total attendance for the three-game Redbird series was 95,236.

The Cards overcame a two-run handicap by scoring four times in the fifth inning on three singles, two of them exceedingly "scrappy," an error, a sacrifice and a fielder's choice.

Taking advantage of every lapse, mechanical and mental, of the home club, the Cards pounded 15 hits off Boston pitching and never were headed after their four-run spree in that fifth.

Roundman Ron Northey clubbed his fifth homer of the season, a two-run blast, in the sixth.

Although he gave up all 13 Boston hits and was replaced in the ninth when the Braves started a short-lived rally, left-hander Howie Pollet hung on to win his seventh victory against five defeats.

The tale of the fifth inning is well nigh the story of the game. Northey started it by singling under Second Baseman Bobby Sturgeon's glove. Whitey Kurowski was safe when Sturgeon threw poorly to first after fielding the Cardinal third sacker's skidding infield dribbler.

Nippy Jones topped a grounder which Bob Elliott fielded and threw to second, too late to retire Kurowski, and the bases were filled.

Catcher Bill Baker bounced a slow hit into left field, inches away from Elliott's glove, for two runs.

Pollet sacrificed to put runners on third and second and after Erv Dusak grounded out, scoring Jones, Marty Marion's third hit, a smash into centerfield, drove in Baker with the fourth run of the inning.

Stan Musial greeted Clyde Shoun with a lustrous rightfield double in the top of the eighth. Enos Slaughter's hot safety into center sent in Musial.

Slaughter took second on a wild pitch and he scored from second when Shoun erred twice on Northey.

Northey hit between first and second, Frank McCormick made a nice toss to the bag which Shoun dropped. Then Shoun's throw to the plate bounced off the back of the scoring Slaughter for another error.

Penso Scores In Va. Regatta

Irvington, Va., Aug. 1 (AP)—Charles (Dinky) Vail of the Norfolk Yacht and Country Club, sailed his Rebel II to a first place and two second places to lead the Hampton 1 design class with 94.1 points as the fifth annual Virginia Sailing Regatta ended today.

In second place was Lloyd Emory's Rough Passage, from Urbanna Yacht Club, with 88.2 points. Chauncey Willis of the Norfolk Yacht and Country Club, sailing Long Cone, was in first place, with two firsts and a second, but dropped to third after he was disqualified in the first race.

Willis' disqualification came upon protest filed by C. W. Chevington of Urbanna Yacht Club, who charged Willis with barging the starting line and striking Chevington's boat which capsized after it in turn struck another boat.

Trivett, sailed by Len Penso of Columbia Yacht Club, Washington, placed first in the Penguin class. Joe Kraft's Outpost of Old Dominion Boat Club, Alexandria, which tied yesterday with Penso, was disqualified following a protest filed last night.

Sea Biscuit, sailed by Ralph A. Young of Old Dominion Boat Club, was second in the Penguin class. Only two Penguin races were held during the regatta. Three were scheduled, but the third was called off because of a delay in the schedule.

Torch to Torquay
London, Aug. 1 (AP)—The Olympic torch set out for Torquay today to light the Olympic yachting competition which begins there tomorrow.

In the first encounters, the European champion Italian team defeated Yugoslavia, 4 to 2. And Hungary defeated Egypt, 5 to 2, at water polo in the Olympic contests held today.

Both were games replayed after protests against referees' decisions.

At Takoma Park Pool Junior 110-Yard Backstroke Title at Stake Here Tonight

A junior national swimming champion will be crowned tonight at Takoma Park Pool in conjunction with the sixth annual A. Earle Weeks Memorial meet.

The men's junior national 110-yard backstroke title is at stake, and the race has lured outstanding young backstrokers from New Jersey, Pennsylvania, New York, Maryland and North Carolina.

Two Ambassador free-styler, Wilhelmina Orme, and Roberta Ashburner, loom as potent challengers to defending Bettie Roland in the 200-yard event.

Takoma Park has several good sprint prospects in Diane Harrison, Joan Tavenner and Dot Ballou. The host club is relatively inexperienced, but Coaches Jake Hengstler and "Ma" Rowland have several youngsters who look like future champions.

Tonight's nine-event show will open at 8 o'clock.

Baltimore's Harry Sutton, winner of the breast stroke in 1947, may be extended against Gene Vezani, Barry Wall and Mark Coughlin, Duke U. natator.

Hogan Slips, Oliver Ties For Title

Buffalo, N. Y., Aug. 1 (AP)—Porky Ed Oliver, the pudgy papa of three, came from three strokes back today to tie favored Ben Hogan at 281, 7 under par, for the $15,000 forty-fifth annual Western Open golf championship.

The Seattle fat boy, 1941 winner of this event, carded a 71, one under par, while Hogan skidded to 74 on the final 18 of the 72-hole medal play test, missing par on four holes and getting only two birdies.

They'll play off tomorrow morning for the championship over the 6663-yard Brookfield Country Club in the first extra heat that has popped up in the Western since 1940.

Bantam Ben Fallers
Hogan, bidding to become the first man in history to wrap up the National Open, P.G.A. and Western titles in a single season, looked like a shoo-in as the final round started. He was perched at 207, 8 under par, while Oliver was 3 strokes away.

Bantam Ben missed par on three of the first four holes, however, and Oliver cut him down to a single stroke at that point, despite a lost shot on the second. The setback was the result of a 3-foot birdie putt on the seventh.

Both birdied the long eighth and played the ninth in par, but Hogan skidded over par on the tenth where his tee shot whistled into trees to the right and his second into a trap. Oliver got an easy par.

Oliver went two strokes ahead on the fourteenth hole with another birdie, sinking a 15-foot putt, but Hogan got the strokes back with pars on the fifteenth and seventeenth holes. On the fifteenth Oliver was trapped to lose one stroke to par, and on the seventeenth he had his only three-putt green of the day.

Hogan Will Take Vacation
Hogan had a chance to take the $2500 first prize without dispute on the twenty-second hole, but his 20-foot putt curved away from the cup a few inches, necessitating the playoff. Second place payoff is $1800.

The National Open champ has plenty of time for the playoff, but Oliver wants to get to Chicago for the Tam O'Shanter classic opening tomorrow

Detroit Track Record

Jockey's 7 Straight Wins Recall Other Record Streaks

New York, Aug. 1 (AP)—Walter Litzberg's feat of riding seven straight winners at the Detroit Fairgrounds race track—the last four on Friday and the first three on Saturday—recalls other memorable jockey achievements.

Ted Atkinson, one of the Nation's top riders, also rode seven consecutive winners at Aqueduct on September 15-16, 1944.

Only last May 15 at Churchill Downs Steve Brooks won the first six races. He failed to make it seven in a row by finishing third in the seventh. Oddly, in the last race of the day previous, Brooks also had finished in the show spot.

Available records indicate Jockey Albert Adams rode nine straight at Marlboro (Md.) on September 10-11-12, 1930.

Atkinson, Johnny Longden and Eddie Arcaro often have ridden four or five winners in one day, but perhaps the "hottest" streak of any jockey was Bobby Permaine's 18 winners of 29 races at Tropical Park on April 5-6-7-8, 1944.

Permaine's feat included winning five races on each of three successive days. He had snared six straight races before running third on Friday in the second race at Tropical on Saturday, April 6.

During his streak Permaine also finished second three times and third three times. His other five mounts were out of the money.

While many riders have seven mounts in one day and won with six, racing records show only two jockeys have ridden seven straight winners in one day. Both of these feats occurred outside the United States. Albert Whitaker did it at Huntley, New Zealand, February 19, 1910, and W. Thomas at Townsville, Australia, July 29, 1929.

Children Police Bicycle Center and Get Free Rides as Reward

Children from the city's settlement houses get free bike rides in exchange for policing the grounds of the Bicycle Center at 14th st. and Hains Point dr. sw.

The youngsters are asked to police the grounds of the center, operated by the youth hostel organization so that they will feel they are earning their own way. Friendship House, Nye Council House, Christ Child Settlement House and the Salvation Army send children to the center once a week as part of their summer programs. The center has invited all organizations serving children to send Red Feather services offered by Potomac Area Youth Hostels, a group providing they supply counselor agency of United Community Services.

Free use of bicycles also is of-

Mat Card Pits Texans
Baxter, Sharkey
A pair of Texans will headline the Wednesday wrestling card at Turner's Arena. Laverne Baxter of Houston will tangle with Babe Sharkey of Dallas. Marvin Mercer is paired with George Macri-costas in a supporting bout.

Sea Bright Tourney
Postponed by Rain
Sea Bright, N. J., Aug. 1 (P)—Rain today forced postponement of several final matches in the Sea Bright lawn tennis and cricket club's tennis tournament.

The men's final between William F. Talbot of New York and Earl H. Cochell of San Francisco, will be played tomorrow if other tennis dates permit. Otherwise, a club official said, it may be put off until September.

Saratoga Opens At 'Home' Today

Saratoga Springs, N. Y., Aug. 1 (P)—The Saratoga Association for the Improvement of the Breed of Horses brings its 1948 race meeting "home" tomorrow for a 24-day whirl.

A crowd of 20,000 or more is anticipated on the opening day, a continuation of the two-week Saratoga-at-Jamaica meeting which ended Saturday. The association's eighty-third meeting will offer added money totaling $282,500 and 22 stake events, among them some of the Nation's oldest races.

Canadian Convention

Ottawa, Aug. 1 (P)—Preparations are moving ahead briskly for the opening next Thursday of the National Liberal convention, a get-together to be climaxed by the seconded Saturday.

Some of the $100 delegates started arriving Saturday.

Post Consensus

Well, look about you, good sir, for the long, sleek new Buicks with the word "Dynaflow" on their taper-thru fenders.

And more than once you've wished for wings—so you could duck all this, dodge the jostle, the push, the stress and strain.

YOU'VE been there, we know—trapped in the crawling snarl of a sunny weekend's traffic—tangled in the huffing, puffing push of a city's busiest rush hour.

With Dynaflow, you just sit there, press the gas treadle—and steer!

At a crawling 5 mph, you'll roll as smoothly, easily, lightly as at a winging 45.

At every opening left by a stalling, laboring neighbor, you have instant-quick power-surge to let you take advantage of it.

Upgrades? A little pressure on the gas treadle handles them. Stop signs? Your foot brake stops you, holds you—till you can feed the gas and go.

You forget shifting entirely—in fact, no gears ever shift as you drive—yet the moment any bottleneck breaks, you move smoothly, swiftly up to boulevard speeds, pacing the pack.

Smoothly did we say? The word is hardly adequate. This velvety lift, this soaring swoop of power, this utter freedom from any break in your stride are things you need to experience to judge.

Why not try it out? Your dealer will do the best he can to arrange a trial—just as he'll take your order any time, whether or not you have a car to trade.

See him—and you'll stop wishing for wings!

They've got the answer—to easy, open-road flight and to the spot where traffic's densest and the driving tension greatest.

With Dynaflow, you just sit there, press the gas treadle—and steer!

Pilot Jumps To Safety, Jet Crashes Md. Store

Building Partially Burned; Adjoining House Narrowly Escapes Plunge

The pilot of a jet-propelled reconnaissance plane failed to get out safely when his ship ran low on fuel near Port Deposit, Md., yesterday, a Langley Field officer reported.

Identified as First Lieut. Gaylord M. Jackson, the Army flier was said to have been returning with three other P-80s from the Idlewild air show in New York City.

Maryland State Police reported "what appears to be a jet plane" crashing into a general store and burning about 4 miles from Rising Sun, Md., on the road to Port Deposit.

Store Partially Burned

The general store, which police said burned to the ground, was owned by Joseph Abrahams. Abrahams said the plane missed his home, which is next to the store, by not more than 25 feet. It struck the ground, plowed a deep furrow and then crashed into the store, he said.

Two sisters, Cornelia and Virginia, his daughter-in-law and three grandchildren were in the house with him when the plane hit. Miss Cornelia Abrahams said she heard a loud noise just before the crash and commented that a thunderstorm must be approaching.

The plane crashed at about 3:50 p. m. near the Woodlawn forest fire tower, police said.

An officer at Langley Field said the flier telephoned from Aberdeen, Md., to "flight service" at an unidentified location to say he was "all right."

Bad Weather Believed Cause

Flight service then relayed the information to Langley Field, according to the officer.

He said bad weather apparently caused the four-plane formation to break up and also drained Lieut. Jackson's fuel supply. Two of the other planes were reported to have landed safely at Langley and the third at Reading, Pa.

The Army information office at Aberdeen said an officer and five enlisted men had been alerted to locate the errant pilot. No word has been received there, however, as late as 6:55 p. m.

State police at Conowingo, Md., however, reported at 7 p. m. that "several State troopers had found a Lieutenant Jackson" at the farm house of E. D. Lamin, about an eighth of a mile from the scene of the crash. He sustained only brush burns from his parachute jump, police said.

The crashed P-80 was among at least 24 from Langley Field which took part in the gigantic air parade before President Truman and Governor Dewey in New York City Saturday. The remainder of the jet fighters, except the one landing in Pennsylvania, had returned to base safely, according to Langley Field.

Lieutenant Jackson is a member of the 161st Reconnaissance Squadron (photo), jet-propelled, based at Langley Field since November, 1946. Langley Field said he was described as being "about 30 years old" and married. He was said to live at 213 Herbert ave., Buckroe Beach, Va.

D. C. Air Guard Units Grounded By Bad Weather

Bad weather grounded the District's Air National Guard yesterday on the first official day of its 2-week summer training at Dover, Del.

The air units, under command of Col. Laidler B. Mackall, had scheduled a full day of dive-bombing, strafing, ground work and other activities for today. They arrived Saturday at the Dover Army air base.

Among local units in training, with about 400 officers and men, are 123rd Fighter Group Headquarters, Headquarters and Detachment A of the 213th Air Service Group, 121st Fighter Squadron and Weather Station and 121st Utility Flight.

Who Will Prosecute?

Conviction of Girl's Strangler Hinges on Proof of Jurisdiction

The question of jurisdiction became paramount today in the strangling of 19-year-old Shirley Will, Baltimore, whose dead body was found in a ditched car beside the wounded, semiconscious form of her boy friend, early Saturday.

With the wounded youth, Duncan Livingston, Jr., 25, Baltimore, yesterday reported "slightly improved," the possibility of his standing trial in connection with the slaying raised the question of who is to prosecute?

Under the law, prosecution must be handled by authorities of the area in which the crime was committed. The car itself was found just outside the town of Aberdeen, Md., about 35 miles from Baltimore. Unless the prosecution could prove where the crime occurred, chances of conviction would be slim, it was pointed out.

Livingstone had been shot once in the chest with a .38 caliber pistol. Such a weapon and a necktie were found on the front seat of the auto.

An Aberdeen policeman reported Livingston had muttered before lapsing into unconsciousness: "I strangled her."

In the meantime, as Harford

County police withdrew a guard from Livingston's bedside at the Harford Memorial Hospital, Havre de Grace, Capt. Henry J. Kriss of the Baltimore detective bureau, said two men were investigating.

Asked if a guard would be placed over Livingston by Baltimore authorities, Kriss answered: "An outside agency is handling that." He would not elaborate.

The matter of jurisdiction also is an important one as far as Baltimore newspapers desiring to give news of the affair to their readers are concerned.

If the crime were found to have been committed in Baltimore and city police given jurisdiction, newspapers in that city would be hamstrung by a ruling of the Supreme Bench of Baltimore which forbids most of the salient facts in criminal cases to be published. The ruling has no effect outside the municipality.

Yesterday for the second consecutive day the Baltimore Sun defied the ruling by printing quotations from police and others involved.

The Baltimore American, on the other hand, and the News-Post have refrained from publishing such details. Instead, they inserted sections of the court's ruling.

Man Stabbed In Weekend Assault Dies

Pocketknife Cuts Prove Fatal in Dispute at Cards

A fatal stabbing over a card game, and three assaults, were reported by police yesterday.

John Pollard, 28, of 824 24th st. nw., died at 1:10 a. m. yesterday at Freedmen's Hospital, less than 24 hours after he was stabbed with a pocket knife during a card game argument.

Held for action of the coroner was Alex Ferguson, 31, 1636 14th st. nw., where the stabbing occurred about 2 a. m. Saturday. Police said Ferguson's defense was that Pollard threatened him with a knife first. Police listed the stabbing as the first August homicide. (An all-time record of 12 homicides was listed for July.)

In the three assaults: Robert Hightower, 24, of 55 Pierce st. nw., told police that about 8:30 yesterday morning two men stabbed him several times with an icepick. He was admitted to Gallinger Hospital suffering from wounds in the back, abdomen, right side and left shoulder.

Eleanor Dawson, 23, 1732 Corcoran st. nw., reported she was knocked down by a man about 12:40 a. m. yesterday near her home and kicked in the face and head. Admitted to Freedmen's hospital with a cerebral concussion, she was able to name her assailant, but could give no address.

Henry Dwyer, 48, 441 1st st. nw., was stabbed in the chest with a knife in what he said was an argument with his wife about 4:30 a. m. yesterday. No charges were filed. Dwyer was taken to Freedmen's Hospital.

Pre-Indian Sites Will Be Flooded By Reservoir

Location of 150 prehistoric habitation sites in the Georgia and South Carolina areas to be flooded by the Clark Hill reservoir has been reported by Smithsonian Institution archeologists.

The institution said today the sites, mostly prehistoric, are along the Savannah River and its tributaries in eastern Georgia and southwestern South Carolina.

When the reservoir is completed, an area 37 miles long on the Savannah, Little and Broad Rivers in Georgia and Little River in South Carolina will become a tremendous lake, with a shoreline of 1000 miles.

The Smithsonian said archeological sites in the flooded section will be permanently destroyed. For this reason, the institution said, a survey was carried out cooperatively by Smithsonian, the National Park Service and Army engineers to mark the sites for excavation before they are flooded.

Legion Auxiliary Girls Coming to See Government

Girls from all 48 States will arrive in Washington Saturday to attend the Girls' National, a five-day study of the Federal Government's operations, sponsored by the American Legion Auxiliary.

The Girls' National, a feminine counterpart of the Boys' Forum currently convening at American University, will use the same university campus as headquarters.

The high school students, all of whom have officers in Girls' State Forums, will hear talks by Secretary of State George Marshall and several Congresswomen. They also will choose a president.

Firemen Plan Cruise

The Cabin John Volunteer Fire Department will sponsor a cruise on the S. S. Mount Vernon next Sunday at 8:30 p. m. Tickets will be on sale at the wharf, 7th st. and Maine ave. sw., on Sunday and at the fire station, MacArthur blvd. and Seven Locks rd., Md., during the week.

Pants Burglar? Room Thefts Reminiscent Of '44 Wave

A thief with a habit of prowling about and dipping his hands in other persons' pockets today was sought by police who feared a return of the notorious "pants burglar" of 1944-1945, after persons reported a total $201.50 stolen while they slept.

John R. Lucas, 51 T st. ne., reported to police that the intruder removed $100 from his pants while he slept in his home between 1 a. m. and 6 a. m.

Not Afraid of Crows

At the same time, $77 was removed from the trousers of Lucas' cousin, William B. Lucas, visiting from Center County, Pa., and $9 from the handbag of Lucas' niece, Ida Grace Ruppenthal. In the house at the time, in addition to the victims, were Mrs. William Lucas and the Lucas five children.

Stealthy fingers removed $19 from the trousers of James Williams, Fairmont, W. Va., as he slept in the home of Casper S. Williams, 1838 4th st. nw., whom he was visiting. A handbag containing personal papers was stolen from Cornelia Williams. As a final flourish, the thief made off with the Williams' Sunday dinner, an uncooked chicken, removed from the refrigerator.

Across the neighborhood

Edward Worthy reported $22 stolen from his trousers lying over a chair, and a block away, at 1900 3d st. nw., Matthew E. Lee reported $20 taken from his shirt pocket as he slept.

Harry J. Purvey, 409 Florida ave. nw., told police someone entered an open rear window and took his trousers containing $4.50 from a chair in his bedroom.

The original "Pants Burglar," still apparently at large, cost residents of the Northwest section $12,000 during a four-month period in 1944. More than 40 detectives were assigned in a special squad at the time to track him down.

Navy Accountant Leaves Her Post After 30 Years

Miss Alvena M. Steffen, 59, of 2707 Adams Mill rd. nw., auditing and accounting assistant in the Navy Department's Bureau of Ships, was retired Saturday after 30 years' service in Navy offices.

Miss Steffen, a native of Lexington, Neb., began work in the Bureau of Steam Engineering in 1918. From 1936 to 1939 she helped prepare budgets submitted by the Bureau of Ships to Congress.

She was given an informal retiring party by her coworkers at the Bureau of Ships Friday.

Ruhland to Attend Two Gatherings

District Health Officer George C. Ruhland, whose annual vacation begins today, plans to take part in a centennial celebration and a sanitation conference during his month off, he said yesterday.

Dr. Ruhland on August 16 will attend the centennial at Syracuse, N. Y., where he was an official in a health program sponsored by the Milkbank Foundation from 1924 to 1935. He will also participate in a three-day meeting on sanitation problems at Blue Ridge, N. C., beginning August 24.

Post Theater Opening

The Fort Leslie J. McNair post theater, converted from an office building at a cost of $50,000, will be formally opened to post personnel at 7 p. m. Tuesday, Col. Ernest C. Norman, post commander, announced yesterday.

The United States Army Band's dance orchestra from Fort Myer, will present a half-hour program before show time.

Father Saves 5 Children In Fire, Dies

Glen Arden Man Overlooks Infant Son Who Burns To Death in Crib

The heroism of a 51-year-old father in saving five of his six children from their blazing bungalow at Glen Arden, Md., early yesterday cost him his life.

An infant son, apparently overlooked as the father repeatedly ran back into the flaming house to rescue his family, burned to death. The mother and another child were injured.

Dead were Sylvester Hester, owner of the bungalow, and his infant son, Cephus. His wife, Marian, 42, and the other child, Elizabeth Hester, 2, suffered second and third-degree burns.

According to firemen, Hester was able to rout his family from the house when the blaze started around 4:30 a. m.

The fire was caused by lightning, firemen said. Starting under the roof, it was out of control when companies from West Lanhams, Seat Pleasant, Landover Hills and Bladensburg arrived.

Witnesses said Hester had carried several of his children to safety, trip by trip, suffering severe burns all over his body in the process. Taken to Gallinger Hospital, he was pronounced dead at 10:28 a. m.

The 9-month-old child was discovered in its crib on the ground floor when a wall collapsed. He was taken to Gasch funeral home, Hyattsville.

The Glen Arden community, located a few miles from Seat Pleasant, has no running water. Firemen fought the blaze with well water and, when that was exhausted, used booster tanks atop their engines.

They also summoned companies from Hyattsville and Riverdale Heights during the fire.

State Troopers Run Course for Laurel Police

Members of the Laurel, Md., police force are being trained by Maryland State police.

Acting Chief George S. Barkman has arranged to have Sgt. Maynard Puncke and Corp. Champ Zumbum of the Waterloo substation conduct a six-month training course at the Laurel Armory.

The State police also have opened their pistol range at Waterloo for Laurel policemen to perfect their marksmanship and have checked the speedometer on the Laurel police car with the result that a campaign against speeders looms. Close cooperation between the town and Prince Georges County police force also is planned. Chief Barkman has made a tour of the county, and has been checking fingerprinting and photographic facilities and in turn will furnish the county with reports on accidents and arrests by the town police.

4-H Vanguard Arrives for 6-Day Course at Md. U.

The Vanguard of more than 1000 farm boys and girls expected to register for the six-day 4-H Club week course at the University of Maryland rolled into College Park yesterday.

They were divided into four "Indian tribes," which will serve as the basic organization during the week's activities.

The purpose of the school, held during the special week honoring 4-H Clubs throughout the country, is to inform the boys of the latest advances in agriculture and the girls of the newest sewing techniques.

Heading the program are Miss Dorothy Emerson, Mye S. Downey and Sherard Wilson, State Club heads.

Baby Discovered In Woods; Mother Held by Police

A 19-year-old unmarried mother last night was held for investigation by Rockville police, suspected of having abandoned her 5-day-old daughter in a wooded section near Rockville Union Cemetery.

The mother, who lives in Germantown, Md., and the baby were released from Montgomery County General Hospital at 10:20 a. m. yesterday.

Half an hour later, a brother of the girl found the baby, wrapped in a blanket, lying in the rain. The infant was taken back to the hospital where her condition was reported as "fair." Police are checking the story of the child's mother that she had given the infant to the child's father.

Md. Police to Resume Dragging for Body

Maryland State police last night said they would resume dragging operations as soon as weather permits for the body of a Washington man reported drowned Saturday in St. Clements Bay, St. Marys County.

Police identified the reported victim as Thomas Mackall, 28, of 208 54th st. se. He was believed to have been swimming off shore at Twilight Beach.

Boys' Forum Conducts Mock Senate Hearings

Legislators Give Testimony Before 90 School Pupils

The United States Senate could take a lesson—in orderliness if nothing else—from 90 teen-age American boys who held make-believe Senate hearings here last night.

It was part of a week-long Boys' Forum of National Government sponsored by the American Legion. High school seniors from 45 States, all leaders in youth citizenship activities, are participating in the study of Federal Government.

Divided into "Nationalist" and "Federalist" parties, they broke up into 3 committees at American University's Hurst Hall last night for hearings on legislative control for the Communist bill. Both Mundt, who favored a bill as stringent as the current Mundt-Nixon bill, and Hoffield, who opposed it, received the same kind of going-over they themselves have been known to give to real congressional witnesses.

As one "committee member" sought to interrogate Mundt, an American Legion counselor gestured in the background for the youth to stand up before putting the question—although real Senators don't ordinarily do it in committee hearings.

"You said you would have the Communist Party regulated just as we regulate other political parties," the boy said. "Yet, your proposed regulations are a little stiffer than those we have for the Democrats and Republicans."

Underhanded Operation

"Well," Mundt replied, "I meant that the Communist Party claims to be a legitimate political party. Actually, it's not; it operates underhandedly to undermine the Government."

The "Foreign Relations Committee" heard Senator Homer Ferguson (R., Mich.) and Arthur Sweetser, U. N. director of information here, on the U. N. loan. Again, it was an adult who reminded the boys it was all just make-believe.

After completing his testimony, Ferguson addressed the committee as "Boys." He said, "this is a wonderful world. To think that your youngsters can come here from all over the Nation and learn about your Government this way."

Aid for Schools

The "Labor and Public Welfare Committee" listened to Earnest Giddings, legislative representative of the National Education Association, who spoke for Federal aid to schools, and Dr. John Miles of the United States Chamber of Commerce, who opposed such legislation.

The three bills under consideration are scheduled for full "Senate" vote when the 90 boys convene in the Senate caucus room at 9 a. m. Tuesday.

Today, they will have a press-radio dinner at the National Press Club at 7 p. m. Guests will include Elmer Davis, American Broadcasting Co. commentator; Jack Bell of the Associated Press; and Joseph Short, press club president.

Tuesday night, at a mock national convention, they will elect a "President" and "Vice President" from candidates nominated from both "parties."

New Taxes Suggested As Sources Of Revenue

Luxury, Amusement, Tobacco, Liquor Levies Proposed as Aid to D. C. Income

Luxury, amusement, tobacco and alcoholic beverage taxes, either singly or in combination, were suggested as possible sources of additional District revenue last night.

The suggestions were made on the "District Roundtable" program over Station WINX.

Participants included Senator Harry P. Cain (R., Wash.), chairman of the Senate District Committee's Subcommittee on Fiscal Affairs; Senator Olin D. Johnston (D., S. C.), member of the District Committee; Paul J. Foley of the D. C. Institute of Certified Public Accountants; and John H. Connaughton, president of the Federation of Citizens' Associations. Ben Paul Noble of the D. C. Bar Association was moderator.

The suggestion for luxury, amusement, tobacco and alcoholic beverage taxes was made by Foley, who also offered the idea of a municipal liquor monopoly similar to the State liquor store systems found in many parts of the country.

Foley offered the assistance of the Accountants Institute to Congress in studying the problem of new tax sources for the District.

Sales Tax Opposed

The participants generally opposed a District sales tax, which Senator Cain said he had supported as "realistic" in the face of the District's budget deficiency.

All four speakers said the Federal Government did not contribute its proper share to the support of the District.

Senator Johnston said he believed Congress would appropriate more money for the District "if it understood." Anybody who studies the way the Federal Government has dropped down in its payments to the District, how much property has been taken off the tax rolls here, and the number of people paying taxes elsewhere would see the problem, he said.

Federal Aid Suggested

Connaughton said 50 per cent of the property is owned by private citizens, 30 per cent by embassies and other nontaxpayers, and 20 per cent by the Federal Government. Passing over the 30 per cent owned by embassies and other nontaxpayers, he said "if the Federal Government paid two sevenths of the costs, since it owns two sevenths of the taxable property, we wouldn't have a problem."

Connaughton also opposed increased real estate taxes and other speakers agreed that they should be raised only as a last resort.

Negro Elk Ruler Calls on Members To 'Follow Flag'

J. Finley Wilson, for 26 years grand exalted ruler of Negro Elks, has just issued a proclamation concerning the Cincinnati convention this month in which he calls on members of his group to remember their patriotic tradition.

The proclamation says: "War clouds are hovering. Rumors of war are heard at home and overseas. Bombshells are falling in Palestine and in the Holy Land. We are urging our boys to join the draft and follow the flag, even though we may not have been given the best break in years gone by. Let us always be ready in any war to come!"

Manager Edmund Plohn said only the "necessary" physical changes will be made to provide for screen showings. The stage will remain.

Closing of the National to stage plays resulted after Actors' Equity refused to let its members appear if Negroes are denied seats. The theater management stood firm in its policy to admit only whites.

Man Saves Wallet
And Nabs Suspect

A Mount Airy, Md., man who fell asleep in the Greyhound Bus Terminal, 12th st. and New York ave. nw., awoke in time yesterday to prevent a pickpocket from stealing his wallet and to catch the suspect in a two-block chase.

James B. Shields told police he fell asleep in a bench at the terminal but was awakened about 12:30 a. m. by a tug at his pants pocket. As he leaped up, he said, a man standing over him dropped his wallet and ran. Shields chased the man, caught him at 11th and H sts. nw.

Police held the suspect for investigation.

Police Cycle Wanders

A 25-year-old patient on week-end leave from Forest Glen Hospital for Army convalescents was accused yesterday of stealing a police motorcycle from the basement of Municipal Center at 3rd and Indiana ave. nw.

According to the police report, James E. Atkins walked into the basement garage about midnight Saturday and drove out on the Traffic Department vehicle.

He was arrested at New Jersey ave. and M st. se., an hour later when a passerby hailed a police patrol wagon and told Pts. Roy J. Hodge of the Fifth Precinct and E. L. Musselman of the Fourth Precinct that the motorcycle was parked at that corner, with a man standing nearby.

Atkins was charged with larceny from the District government.

Pupils to Be Coached

The Friendship House Summer School a five-week course to help first and second graders catch up on their reading and arithmetic opens today at the settlement, 619 D st. se., with registration from 9 a. m. to 12 noon.

The 45 pupils in the course who have been recommended by their teachers as in need of coaching will receive help from normal school graduates. A weekly outing on sightseeing trip also is on the group's schedule.

The Friendship House, a red feather agency which is 30 percent self-supporting, is currently conducting a membership drive.

Engelberg Elected

Jerome K. Engelberg, jr., 3718 Yuma st. nw., was elected president of the Sixth Armored Division Association at its reunion which ended Saturday in Louisville, Ky.

Engelberg, a sergeant-major in the division when it fought in Europe, works in the General Accounting Office here.

Engelberg is a native Washingtonian and a graduate of Western High School. He worked for both the War Department and the Public Works Agency before World War II service.

The Sixth Armored Association selected Pittsburgh for its 1949 reunion.

Bus Line Promises
Faster Service
On '3-F Route'

Faster service on the Arnold Bus Lines "3-F route" in Arlington within 60 days was assured last night by the company's general manager.

E. G. Cramdon, general manager of the line officially known as the Washington, Virginia and Maryland Coach Co., also said improved service will be made throughout Arlington.

Better schedules for the 3-F route, centering around Lee highway and the Lexington area, were asked by 200 petitioners last month. They called for an investigation by "some authoritative body."

Cramdon said last night that "both the Public Utilities Commission and the company were working on the schedules before we even knew a petition was being circulated."

A joint statement by Cramdon, Chairman Neil Foss of the PUC, and Benjamin B. Lipton, representing the petitioners, was also released last night by William Field, 2425 Nottingham ave., one of the signers.

It said the three groups, "fully cooperating," had agreed that "service along the 3-F route . . . will be improved within 90 days to at least a base schedule of 20 minutes and a rush hour schedule of 10 minutes."

Woman's Death Accident

Deputy Coroner Richard M. Rosenberg yesterday issued a certificate of accidental death in the case of Miss Matilda Josephine Gallimore, 28, of 2131 O st. nw., who was killed Saturday night when a storm-wrecked tree limb fell on her at 1413 20th st. nw.

Dozen Injured as Autos Skid
On Slippery Virginia Roads

At least a dozen persons were injured, apparently none critically, in traffic accidents yesterday on rain-soaked highways in nearby Virginia.

Despite the heavy weekend traffic and severity of the weather, there were no serious accidents reported in either the District or nearby Maryland.

Most seriously hurt in the Virginia accidents, according to State police, was Gladys S. McCulloch, 49, of 511 Orinda pl. nw., who suffered head injuries when a car driven by her husband, Robert E. McCulloch, 51, collided with a truck on Route 1 about 4 miles south of Alexandria at 1:30 a. m.

Both Mr. and Mrs. McCulloch were admitted to Alexandria Hospital following the crash. McCulloch, police said, suffered a fractured left kneecap and cuts on the left arm.

Two persons were injured at about 11 a. m. when the automobile they occupied crashed into a pole at Route 1 and Blump's lane, just south of Alexandria.

They were George W. Riggsby of 303 C st. se., admitted to Alexandria Hospital for head lacerations, and Leighton Terry of Newington, Va., who was treated for cuts on the forehead.

A District woman, Mrs. Francis E. Cavin, 29, 1628 21st st. nw., was treated at Alexandria Hospital and then transferred to Emergency Hospital, as a result of an accident on Snake Hill, 3 miles south of Alexandria, at 2 p. m.

State police said Mrs. Cavin was riding in a car driven by her husband, F. E. Cavin, 26, which was in collision with a skidding truck. Cavin was unhurt.

Warren Morton, 19, G um Springs, Va., who was listed by police as the driver of the truck, gate, weighing several tons, was similar to one at right. Truck is owned by Albert Gerstein, of 705 Florida ave. nw., police said. Residents of area said the street was badly constructed and they had complained several times

Bradbury Group
To Discuss Street
Betterment Plans

The Bradbury Heights Citizens' Association will discuss two conflicting plans for street improvement at its meeting at 8 o'clock tonight, James C. Hays, president of the association, said yesterday.

James Anderson, the association's road committee chairman, has petitioned Prince Georges County Commissioners for complete repaving of streets and construction of sidewalks and storm sewers in Bradbury Heights.

James D. Barker, association secretary, said, however, many Bradbury Heights residents prefer to have the streets repaved and to wait for major improvements until they can be done more cheaply.

The meeting will be held in the Coral Hills community hall at Marlboro pike and the District line.

J. J. Payette,
Warner Bros.
Official, Dies

John J. Payette, 35, general zone manager of Warner Bros. theaters in the Washington territory and an active participant in civic affairs, died at his home, 5126 Palisades lane nw., early yesterday following a three-month illness.

Mr. Payette, whose death was caused by a combination of heart and kidney ailments, was general manager of the 45 Warner theaters in the District, Maryland, Virginia, West Virginia and Pennsylvania.

Mr. Payette, who would have been 59 years old August 24, was born in Washington. His parents were the late Dr. George N. and Mary Ellen Payette.

Started as Usher

He was educated in District parochial schools, and started in the theater business in 1904 as an usher at the old Academy of Music on 9th st. He became assistant manager in 1907. Then, when 17 years old, he became manager of the Rhode Island Theater, a 250-seat motion picture house.

In 1914 he joined the General Film Co. as assistant manager and later became identified with Samuel Goldwyn Productions. During World War I he served in the Army. Following his discharge he joined, in 1919, the Harry M. Crandall Circuit of Theaters in Washington as assistant manager of the Metropolitan Theater and three weeks later became manager.

In 1920 he became assistant general manager of the Crandall houses and in 1925 general manager. When the Crandall Theaters were merged with the Stanley Company of America he became theater supervisor, and when Warner Brothers purchased them he became general manager of the Washington territory.

Civilian War Work

During World War II he was co-chairman of the District War Activities Committee of the Motion Picture Industry and was active in other civilian war work.

Mr. Payette was a founder of Tent 11, the Washington branch of the Variety Club and its first chief barker, and was active in civic affairs as a member of the executive committee, Infants' Paralysis Fund drives, chairman of the American Red Cross theater unit, member of the Boy Club committee, District Tuberculosis Society and Greater National Capital Committee.

Among his various interests was farming, and some years ago he purchased Huntley Farms, near Leesburg, Va.

Mr. Payette attended Our Lady of Victory Catholic Church.

He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Dorothy Crandall Payette, daughter of Harry M. Crandall, a pioneer Washington theater owner, and four children: Mrs. Charles Kemp Devereux, John J., Robert Crandall and Ronald Crandall Payette.

Also surviving are a brother and two sisters, George N. Payette of Hagerstown, Md.; Mrs. George A. Deegan, Washington, and Mrs. William Schwalm, Willow Grove, Pa.

Funeral arrangements have not been completed.

J. K. Switzer,
Fruit Firm
Official, Dies

James K. Switzer, 43, of 404 Highland rd., Kenwood, Md., vice president of the National Fruit Corp., died early yesterday at George Washington Hospital following a two-week illness.

Mr. Switzer, a native of Waterloo, Iowa, after attending the University of Pennsylvania started his career in the fruit business with the Stouffer Co. of Cleveland and was later associated with Henrich in Chicago.

He came to Washington in 1943 and prior to becoming vice president of National Fruit in 1947 was manager of the Pentagon post restaurant for the company.

In 1938 he married Miss Maurine Henderson, a Cincinnati Post staff member, there.

He was a member of Christ Lutheran Church, and of Sigma Alpha Epsilon fraternity and the National Restaurant Association.

In addition to Mrs. Switzer, he is survived by three children: Judith, Joan and Jean Switzer; a sister, Miss Grace Switzer of Detroit, also survives him.

Funeral services will be held at the S. H. Hines company chapel, 2901 14th st. nw., at 2 p. m. Tuesday. Burial will be in Rock Creek Cemetery.

J. R. Trollinger
Dead; Post's
Wire Chief

John R. Trollinger, 56, manager of Western Union telegraphers at the Washington Post for the last 15 years, died yesterday at 4 a. m. at Emergency Hospital following an illness of seven months.

A native of Catawba, N. C., Mr. Trollinger was the son of the late Jacob H. Trollinger and Mrs. Eunice Trollinger. He was educated in Catawba schools. He moved to Washington about 1915, where he started to work for Western Union as a telegrapher. He lived in the Marquette apartments, 2115 Pennsylvania ave. nw.

Mr. Trollinger was a Mason and a member of the Commercial Telegraphers Union Local 24 (AFL).

He is survived by a sister, Nannie Harrell of Mooresville, N. C.; a brother, Henderson G. Trollinger of Salisbury, N. C., and another brother living in Catawba, N. C.

Funeral services will be held Tuesday at 11 a. m. in the Catawba Baptist Church. Burial will be in the church cemetery.

Gonorrhea to Hit 25,000 Here in '48

Up Two Million FWA Notes Rise in Public D. C. Building

Contracts awarded for public construction in the District, from January through April of this year, totaled more than six million dollars, the Federal Works Agency revealed yesterday.

This was substantially above the outlay for the same period last year, the FWA announced in its Public Construction monthly, when contracts in excess of four million dollars were issued.

Maryland also showed a boost in the valuation of public building contracts—from 14 million dollars during January through April, 1947, to more than 23 million dollars this year over the same period.

Virginia Declines
In Virginia, however, a decline in valuation was noted. Contracts for the four-month period totaled well over 12 million dollars in 1947. This year the figure stood at a trifle more than 11 million dollars.

Contracts for highway construction over the same period of 1948 totaled three million dollars for Washington, $7,995,000 for Maryland and $2,893,000 for Virginia. Last year, in the same months, the figures were: $4,206,000 for the District, $3,500,000 for Maryland and $10,640,000 for Virginia.

In a foreword to the 32-page report, Administrator Philip B. Fleming urged "direction and preparedness" in handling disasters such as the Columbia River flood and the more recent Vanport fiasco.

Federal Law Needed

Federal legislation is needed "to confer authority and to provide funds" for advance planning of disaster organization "as well as to pay for emergency aid," General Fleming declared. Through "such advance planning," he pointed out, "conflicting Federal, State, and local laws and regulations can be corrected."

Suggesting that a single Federal agency be "empowered to deal" with similar emergencies—coordinating activities of the many Federal units involved as well as private organizations—he claimed the FWA has "gained invaluable experience for this undertaking."

Opera House Building Fund Drive Started

A drive for funds to build an opera house here with its "doors open to all America" was launched yesterday at the Metropolitan A. M. E. Church, 1518 M st. nw.

Sparkplug was Mrs. Mary Cardwell, Dawson, founder and president of the National Negro Opera Company, who told a small audience "it's a shame on Washington that we have no place here."

She termed it "most discouraging and most staggering" that the doors of Constitution Hall "are closed in our faces, right under the President's nose," but warned that "we don't intend to knock on that door any longer."

Noble Sissle, band leader and master of ceremonies for the musical festival to be held Saturday night at Griffith Stadium, described the proposed opera house as "my ambition for the past 30 years."

The company, meeting here all week, will hold a "choir night" today, at 8:30 in the Metropolitan Baptist Church, 1225 R st. nw. It is open to the public.

The program for the week will include lectures, exhibits, round-table discussions and concerts, all involving opera.

Army Vehicle Tests in Arctic

The Army announced yesterday special tests to prepare its trucks, tanks and other vehicles for rapid shipment to the Arctic in an emergency.

The Army said it has developed a new type of cold weather grease that can lubricate in both the Arctic and the tropics.

A convoy of 12 trucks has left for a test tour through the heat of California deserts and the cold of an Alaskan winter.

Gonorrhea will strike 25,000 Washingtonians before the end of the year, according to Health Department data as quoted over the air last night on WTOP's program. "The Undiscovered," aimed at shedding light on that disease and its first cousin—syphilis.

Two women, victims of the malady, and a third, who found her fears groundless, told their stories on the ether waves, without false pride, that others might benefit.

The first, a woman of 30, who never connected the disease with herself because she was "not that kind of a person," described her shock at finding that venereal disease plays no favorites.

Had it not been for publicity of recent weeks, Radio Newman Gunner Back asserted, this woman might have continued in her ignorance while the germs of the disease continued their ravages.

The second woman, a college graduate of 26, said she "became aware of the situation" from reading stories in newspapers and hearing the matter aired over the radio. When she heard that her estranged husband was being treated for gonorrhea, she decided to see a physician.

Tests proved positive. She had the ailment. But with a single injection of penicillin, she was cured. The third persons, a happily married housewife, mother of several children, decided to have a checkup after hearing various symptoms described over the air. Tests freed this woman's mind from the gnawing agony of doubt. They proved conclusively she was not infected.

Last night's 15-minute program was presented over WTOP starting at 11:15 o'clock. It was produced in conjunction with the District Health Department.

Soviet Nurse Flees Ethiopian Hospital

To Marry Italian

Addis Ababa, Ethiopia, Aug. 1 (P)—A pretty blond Russian nurse said today she fled from a Soviet-staffed hospital here last Tuesday to marry and to get away from "severe restrictions" imposed on the staff.

The nurse, Tamiara Gregorievna Terentyeva, was married under Ethiopian law Wednesday to a 22-year-old Italian, Luigi Stravino. The bridegroom is assistant manager of the Ethiopian publicity agency.

Mrs. Stravino said while she was at the hospital the personnel were required to report their off-time whereabouts and were under strict orders not to have social contacts with non-Russians. She said she now is under the protection of a foreign legion and does not fear repatriation.

Former C. of C. Head Named to U. N. Day Post

Harper Sibley, Rochester, N. Y., former president of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States, has been named chairman of the National Citizens Committee for United Nations day October 24, bow.

United Nations Day was authorized by a U. N. resolution which stated that it should be "devoted to making known to the peoples of the world the aims and achievements of the United Nations and to gaining their support for the work of the United Nations."

Rain Fails to Halt Police Boys Club Program

Undaunted by heavy rains, a crowd of well-wishers of the Metropolitan Police Boys Club yesterday attended the annual Directors Day at Camp Ernest W. Brown in Scotland, Md.

Wet weather drove the youngsters from outdoor activities to the recreation room where a variety of games had been set up.

Earlier, Maj. Robert Barrett, superintendent of police, extended an invitation to the 70,000 adult members who joined during the last funds drive to "come to camp next Sunday and the following Sunday to see what your dollar has done."

Robert C. Simmons, president of the club, in a short speech, termed the camp an "answer to the problem of creating better citizens." Simmons presented a sport jacket to Fr. Joseph F. McNamara of St. Joseph's College, Pa., camp chaplain.

As the gift was presented, the club band directed by Maj. Leonard Brusiloff struck up "McNamara's Band."

Another award winner was Paul Baxter, 14, of 935 Shepherd st. nw., who was given a trophy as the outstanding musician in the band by members of the club.

Our Lady of Lourdes Church in Bethesda, Md., was the scene of the marriage July 31 of Miss Dorothy Dunbar, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Thomas Dunbar of Bethesda, to Edward Thomas Kehoe, son of Mr. and Mrs. William A. Kehoe of this city, the Rev. John T. Sweeney officiating.

The bride wore a white satin gown with a wide lace bertha and her veil of illusion was held by a seed pearl tiara. She carried a bouquet of white bridal roses and bubbles-breath.

Miss Ethel Marie Dunbar, sister of the bride, was maid of honor. The bridesmaids were Miss Ann Dunbar, Miss Marilyn Kehoe, the bridegroom's sister, Miss Betty Jean Holmes and Miss Mary Alice Millard.

Daniel J. Kehoe served his brother as best man and the ushers were William A. Kehoe, Jr., Dr. Joseph Derr, John T. Doherty and Joseph Barse.

Following the reception at the home of the bride's parents the couple left for a short wedding trip. On their return they will reside in Keystone Apartments in Washington.

Mrs. Lee Ella Harmon Harp of Washington and Earl Harrison Pendell also of this city were married at 4 yesterday afternoon at Petworth Baptist Church. Dr. M. Chandler Stith, executive secretary of the District Baptist Convention, officiated.

The bride, who is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Andrew Harmon of Dublin, Tex., is secretary of the District Baptist Convention. The bridegroom, the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. E. L. Pendell, is secretary of the District Baptist Brotherhood Council and is official reporter of debates of the United States Senate.

Given in marriage by Stephen Garland Kent of Arlington, Va., the bride wore a white dressmaker suit with a white hat trimmed in roses and tulle. She wore a corsage of orchids.

Mrs. James O. Conley, daughter of the bride, was her mother's only attendant. Franklin A. Steinko was best man, and the ushers

Butlers Tour Europe As Youth Hostellers

By Marie McNair

Seeing Europe as Youth Hostellers, Rosemary Butler and her brother, Richard, are now bicycling down the Rhine after a stay in Coblenz where they helped with the rebuilding of the Youth Hostel there.

With them was their father, Hugh Butler, who'll arrive on the New Amsterdam on Tuesday in New York. Only Mrs. Butler remained at home and at the moment is holding a canning and pickling session at the Butler hide-away at the foot of the Skyline Drive.

Mr. Butler and his children went over on the Marine Tiger with 600 young people, bound for the British Isles. Ernest Hemingway's son was a passenger, to do a story on the trip. On the way over, they were briefed by the State Department and the Friends' Committee; attended lectures, discussion groups and language classes; and danced square or modern dances nightly and even published their own newspaper.

The bicycling Butlers made Stratford-on-Avon their first headquarters and from there wheeled to Little Court, Sonning, to visit the former British Information Minister in Washington, Sir Harold and Lady Butler. They called on Lord and Lady Astor at Cliveden and Rosemary and Richard Butler renewed acquaintance with the doctor who brought them into the world at a nursing home at Stonefield, Blackheath, when Mr. Butler was Assistant Commercial Attaché of the American Embassy in London back in the 1920s.

Mrs. Butler who teaches women how to get up on their feet and speak, has been in Portland, Ore., this spring, conducting four classes in public speaking for the General Federation of Women's Clubs. More recently, she held classes for the Women's Division of the National Democratic Committee in Philadelphia.

First Plane Trip
When Senora de Gaffron, 81-year-old mother of Senora de Ferreyros, wife of the Peruvian Ambassador, took her first airplane trip and came to Washington from Peru, airplane officials sought to make the journey as comfortable as possible.

One way of doing this, they reasoned, was to give her a seat over the wing so that she couldn't see how great the altitude was from her window.

"There oughta be a law!"

You've probably noticed, at some time or other, how one thoughtless person can tie up five full parking spaces.

The same thing applies to a telephone party line. A good party-line neighbor is careful not to tie up the line. He tries to avoid making a number of calls one right after the other, giving others a chance to use the line.

If you share a party line, please keep these few suggestions in mind:

1. Whenever possible, allow an interval between calls.
2. Always answer the telephone as promptly as you can.
3. Please don't interrupt when the line is in use, except in a real emergency.
4. Be sure to replace the receiver carefully after every call.

By sharing the line, you'll help yourself and others to better telephone service.

Good Old Summertime Is Good Time to Diet

By Ida Jean Kain

This is the first of a series of six articles on "Summer Slimming" with budget menus by diet expert Ida Jean Kain.

THIS may be cold comfort, overweight, but it's not the heat that makes you suffer more than others in the good old summertime—it's the insulation. That fat packing under the skin acts as insulation . . . in reverse. It holds the heat in the body. And since the heat generates heat even in August—and whether you're in the city or at the seashore—the alternative is to cut down on the fuel foods. Incidentally, it's reducing.

This is your last chance to get slim this summer . . . so let's talk a cool, reducing diet, and budget the cost and the calories.

Thinking of calories as heat units may encourage you to take fewer high-calorie foods in hot weather. The quickest way to cut down on the fuel in a summer menu is to delete the fat trimmings and concentrated fats, for fats have two and one-fourth times the fuel value of sugar, starches or proteins.

Trim away every bit of fat from the meat, whether it's hot or cold. And no gravy, please. Cut out fried foods, for part of the fat saturates the food and calories mount proportionately. And take your salads with little or no dressing. Go light on concentrated fuel foods in general—cream, rich sauces, butter, sausages, pastries. . . . Have summer fruits for dessert.

JUST as there are high-calorie foods, there are foods that are low in calories—summer vegetables, salad greens, tomatoes, berries, summer fruits and melons. These furnish less heat and fewer pounds.

Regardless of the weather or the number of excess pounds, the body requires material for repair and regulating. Summer menus must furnish adequate nutrition, including protein, minerals and vitamins for tissue building and body regulating. So plan meals around the protective foods: milk and cheese, eggs, lean meats and plenty of summer vegetables and fruits.

The special Mid-Summer Slimming Budget Menu given this week are all under $1.00 a day per person. They provide perfect nutrition at the lowest possible cost, with calories cut to reducing size.

Cooking Cues For Summer

A delicious vegetable combination for this time of year is yellow summer squash, onions and tomatoes. Cook a strip or two of bacon first until crisp, then remove the bacon and saute the squash slices and the sliced onion in the remaining fat; add the tomatoes cut in wedges, season well with salt and pepper, cover tightly and cook until the tomatoes are soft and the flavors well mingled. Sprinkle the crumbled bacon over the top and serve immediately.

If you are storing two flavors of ice cream in the refrigerator put them into the freezing tray in a "marbled" effect; coffee and chocolate ice cream are delicious put together in this way and strawberry and vanilla make another good combination.

Packaged ice cream mixes may be prepared and frozen in either a refrigerator tray or a crank-type freezer.

Use fresh peaches for a Surprise Fruit Rollup. Make up a recipe of rich baking powder biscuit dough, roll it in rectangular shape, spread with a layer of currant jelly, add a layer of sugared sliced peaches, roll up as you would a jelly roll and bake in a hot oven. Slice and serve with whipped evaporated milk or cream that has been sweetened and flavored with vanilla.

Add finely grated onion and crumbled bits of crisply cooked bacon to a green salad bowl. Another delicious tasting addition to a mixed green salad is chopped stuffed olives and tomato catchup.

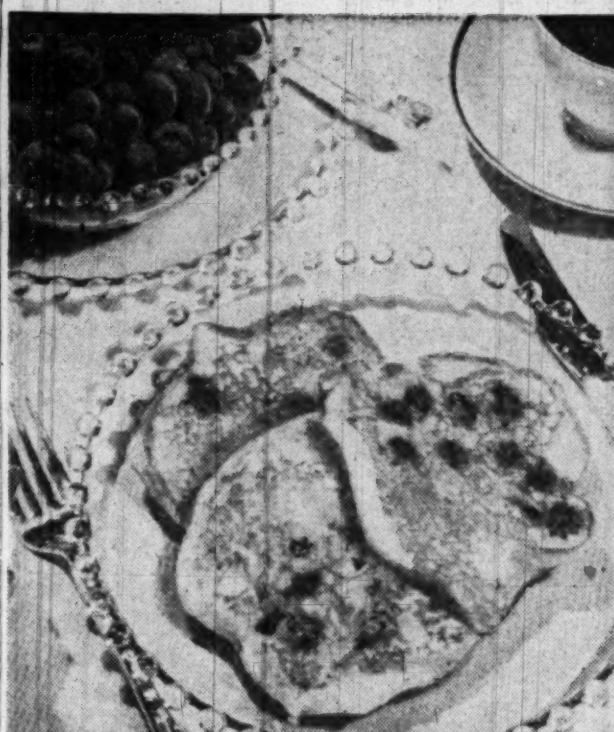

Fresh corn for fritters, puddings or pancakes may be easily removed from the cob if you cut the corn down the center of each row of grains with a sharp knife, then scrape the kernels from the cob with a table knife.

Chill a vegetable gelatin salad in an 8-inch square cake pan, then cut in squares for attractive service. Garnish with salad greens and salad dressing sprinkled with paprika.

Stuff peach halves with cottage cheese and chopped pecans for a salad-dessert. Serve on salad greens and pack a fruit dressing.

In making a pie shell for a fruit or cream filling, pick the entire surface with a fork so as to get rid of any air bubbles and prevent blistering in the finished crust.

A little sugar—not much—sprinkled over a pudding or pie meringue gives a party touch.

A mouth-watering breakfast treat are pancakes made with fresh blueberries. Add a few to your favorite hot cake recipe, or follow the one given in the accompanying story.

Research Underway

Blueberries Are Good

By Lucia Brown

TWO bites for a blueberry! It may take that many to eat one when research now under way is concluded. The United States Department of Agriculture is working on a variety that will run 35 blueberries to the cup compared to the present 80 or 90, it's predicted.

Already, the blueberry has come a long way. Back around the turn of the century, the berries were small and wild. There was no such thing as today's plump, juicy fruit with its tempting, frosty bloom. Then, in 1906, the late Dr. F. V. Coville of the Department of Agriculture took the blueberry in hand. His work, that of pioneer growers Elizabeth and Joseph White and others, have meant the fine berries of today that sometimes grow to a half inch diameter.

Blueberries are on the market longer now, too, since they're grown from North Carolina to Michigan. The fresh berry season is still relatively short, however, so take advantage of the fine current crop by serving them both raw and cooked.

Some taste-tempting dishes that can be made with them are blueberry topper, tarts, muffins, and pancakes. The topper, which can be served either for dessert or as coffee cake, is made as follows:

BLUEBERRY TOPPER
2 cups cake flour
2 teaspoons baking powder
¼ teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon vanilla
¼ cup milk
¼ cup shortening
¼ cup sugar
¼ cup honey
1 egg

Sift together flour, baking powder and salt. Measure vanilla into milk. Set these aside until

BLUEBERRY PANCAKES

2 cups sifted flour
3 teaspoons baking powder
½ teaspoon salt
1 tablespoon sugar
1 or 2 eggs, well beaten
1½ cups milk (scant)
2 tablespoons shortening, melted
1 cup blueberries
Mix and sift dry ingredients. Combine egg and milk, add flour mixture, and beat until smooth. Add shortening, then stir in blueberries. Bake slowly on greased hot griddle. Serve plain with butter, or use a hot blueberry sauce in addition to butter. Or spread with butter, sprinkle with brown sugar, and roll up before serving.

About Nursing As a Profession

I have decided to become a graduate practical nurse and would appreciate your advising me as to the most reputable school of practical nursing in Washington. Also, I would like to know if there is any demand for practical nurses in the hospitals here. If there isn't I might consider taking the three-year training and become a registered nurse. I would like to learn where I might obtain information concerning this also.

C. B. K.

The Graduate Nurses Professional Counseling and Placement Bureau, which can be reached by calling Adams 6060, is conversant with the entire Washington nursing picture and will be pleased to discuss this problem with you. This is an impartial organization which can give you information about practical nursing courses as well as the entire three-year course. They suggest you call and arrange for an appointment.

We have been finding round holes in our walls. They are made of sheet rock. A new one will appear over-night all on the 2x4. You can push a pencil back in 2 inches. The house was built early last winter. The holes have just appeared in the past month. Is there any way to stop this?—T. P.

From the amount of information given in your letter, it would seem that the holes are caused by your walls, it would seem that the plaster was not worked into each of these holes and the covering over the holes is breaking through. The only permanent solution would be to replaster, taking care to fill each hole with enough plaster to fill it.

Where do you place the ice tea spoon when setting a table, and do you use a coaster or small saucer under ice tea glass?

M. L. M.

If iced tea is to be served throughout the meal, the spoon would be placed to the right of the plate, the first spoon on the outside. If the tea is to be served at only one course, the spoon is placed at the extreme right of the table setting at the time the tea is served.

Usually a coaster is used under the glass, although I see no reason why a small saucer could not be used if it is made so that the glass would set firmly on it.

Could you tell me if you know of anyone that makes corsets out of paper? They are beautifully made up and can hardly be distinguished from real ones. I am very anxious to find some place to buy them.

L. L.

I have not been able to find a firm which sells the kind of corsets in which you are interested. Perhaps if you take a sample of the corsets to the artificial flower buyer at one of the large department stores, she may be able to give you the name of the firm which makes them.

Use Rose Oil to Calm Untidy Hair

If your hair is the sort that goes into a wind-blown bob every time it is washed and it takes three or four days before it calms down, it needs a sprinkling of rose oil over it after it has dried from the shampoo. This will quiet down those blowy ends and give the hair a lovely luster as well.

Allow the porcelain-topped stove to cool before washing it.

A dampened sponge removes lint from clothing in short order. Corner shelves will increase the bottle space in the bathroom.

A coat of lacquer on the wire clothesline is a preventive of rust. Insert the candle holders in the birthday cake before the icing has set, then you will not have any unsightly cracks running from the holders.

BISHOP-BRACKEN

because a too thin coat of plaster was applied to the sheet rock when it was plastered. Sheetrock is, as you no doubt know, a sheet of plaster with a cardboard covering on both surfaces. Each 24 by 36 inch sheet has approximately 12 holes the size of a half dollar cut at regular intervals through the sheet. These holes are there to increase the bond between the sheet rock and whatever is placed back of it. To do this, the holes should be completely filled with plaster when the finish plaster is applied. They not only should be filled, but enough plaster should be worked into the holes to fill completely the space to the backing so that these spots of plaster when dried will adhere and act as a bond between the support and the sheet rock. Clubwomen Urged to Vote In '48 Elections

Oyez! Oyez! Gather 'round, ye clubwomen. Can you spare 3 1/2 minutes to cast a ballot.

This is the poster the General Federation of Women's Clubs has put to its five million members in a pamphlet entitled, "Why Women Should Vote in the 1948 Elections."

The publication, under the direction of Mrs. J. L. Blair Buck, federation head, and Mrs. T. C. Carroll, citizenship chairman, is being distributed throughout the Nation.

Citing the fact that almost two million more women than men are eligible to vote in the forthcoming elections, the GFWC's brochure urges its members to accept the responsibility of seeing to it that all eligible women register and vote. Through its citizenship program, the organization sets the goal of 47,760,000 informed women voting in November.

"As woman to woman, friend to friend, neighbor to neighbor, the effort to enlist women as voters should be made by clubwomen," states the pamphlet, which goes on to declare, "in recent years only about one in each of three eligible voters went to the polls."

Continues the federation warning, "No one knows what the percentage of nonvoters will be in 1948, but the year calls for a mighty effort by every lover of democracy to help do away with the deficit government that exists when only one third of the population exercises its right of franchise. Any government chosen by one third of its eligible voters tends to be a minority government. Women can add their numbers to those of male citizens using the franchise, and the total result will be the restoration of majority government."

Noted Artists To Appear on Yule Cards

New York—Marking the largest concentration of artistic talent ever mobilized for a single medium, the works of 50 foremost American, Canadian and European artists will appear on this year's Christmas cards, it was announced here by Joyce C. Hall, president of Hall Brothers, world's largest greeting card publishers.

Mr. Hall revealed that he has obtained the exclusive rights to the paintings of the Gallery Artists organization, as the first step in an extensive program for making the world's finest art available in Hallmark greeting cards.

"Technical progress in the graphic arts now makes it possible to create faithful, high quality reproductions of the world's great works of art to meet public demand," Mr. Hall said.

The Gallery Artists cards, he explained, will range from such European masters as El Greco to such founders of modern art as Paul Cezanne, Paul Gauguin, Auguste Renoir and Vincent Van Gogh. The group also includes such modern impressionists as Claude Monet and Camille Pissarro.

Majority of the artists whose works will appear on the Gallery Artists Christmas cards are American painters representing all artistic schools, Mr. Hall explained.

Well Decorated Living Room Provides for Family Interests

Plan your living room for full-time living. Plan for relaxed entertaining, letter writing, enjoyment of books, music, and radio—all the interests that create happy living for your family.

You'll want some brilliant color in your living room, but be careful. Make sure your overall scheme is restful, warm, and comfortable. Home furnishings editor of Better Homes & Gardens magazine.

You'll be safest with plain walls. If you have an old living room, paint over any bad features—radiators, fireplace, woodwork, doors—with the same color you use on walls.

When buying materials, get just one pattern. For the rest of the room choose solid colors picked from the pattern, and perhaps a harmonizing stripe. With patterned rug, everything else in the room must be subdued.

Wall-to-wall carpeting gives a restful, unbroken line and makes a small room look larger. When you use small throw rugs, remember two rules: (1) Make a rug part of a furniture group. (2) Place throw rugs square with your room.

Simple windows are a sense of security toward the ill effect of food. If you have a small room, take advantage of today's double-use furniture; cabinets that combine desk, bookcase, and general storage—sofas that turn into beds. Don't be afraid to combine wood finishes. Bleached and dark woods complement each other. A room full of pale furniture takes on a new sparkle if you add a strategic piece or two of dark, dark green, or black lacquer finish.

Are there years of wear left in the furniture you have. Then fit the upholstery pieces into your new decorating scheme with fresh slipcovers. Bleach or lacquer old furniture to make them real assets to a room.

Good decorating is placing furniture the way it serves you best, whether that is the usual way or not. If you want a quiet alcove for reading, block off part of your room with sectional bookcases or a spinet piano.

Every room should have one dramatic spot. This center of interest may be a fireplace, a bay or picture window. Balance furniture on either side of your strong feature to play it up. If your room has no natural center of interest, you can make one with a wall of bookshelves, or even a good sofa grouping.

Usually your main conversation group will be located at the room's center of interest. Provide plenty of seating where you can chat with friends. Near every seat there should be an end table or coffee table for ash trays and refreshments.

For reading you'll want a comfortable chair, a good lamp, and an end table, located as close as possible to bookshelves. For games, provide a well-lighted card table and chairs. The comfort of listeners as well as the musician. As you plan your room, bear in mind the natural traffic lanes through it. Keep them clear will save you many steps.

When you are selecting accessories, one good general rule is to have them few and substantial. Pictures, too, must look important. Pictures should be a part of a furniture group. Hang them over your sofa, fireplace, desk, or radio—not on an orphan expanse of wall. Whatever you do, don't let your decorating enthusiasm run away with you. Remember—your family's comfort comes first.

Allergic Child Must Be Spared Contact With Harmful Foods

By Myrtle Meyer Eldred

When children have obvious sensitivities to common foods, it does them no good to force these foods upon them. The longer the food is kept out of the diet—and that means rigidly, with not a particle of it in any other food—the greater the chance for them to develop an immunity to it. In time children should be able to take the food without noticeable reaction to it.

People are lulled into a sense of security toward the ill effect of foods, to which they may be allergic, because they find that at times they can take them without punishment. But, this is merely a dramatic illustration of the cyclic nature of the ailment. No matter what the reaction, be it diarrhea, rash, hives, asthma or whatnot, there are times when it is active and times when it is passive, even on the same diet and in the same environment.

Mrs. M. L. P. writes, "Our boy of two had a terrible case of eczema at 6 months of age. If I hadn't been nursing him it would have been worse, as he has a marked allergy to cow's milk."

"He has almost outgrown his 10 allergies, but bread or crusts, toast or cookies, still give him diarrhea. He gets a staid, skinned milk at present, but he seems starved for bread. If he can reach a piece he will grab it and stuff it into his mouth."

"He loves vegetables of all kinds, will eat all the meat I give him and the canned baby fruits. At breakfast he eats a big dish of oatmeal. He gets vegetables, as well as dessert for lunch. At night he has meat, potatoes, vegetables and dessert for supper. People tell me children need sugar for energy, but aren't proper foods able to supply energy? Egg is one of his worst allergies so he never gets that."

There is no reason either to overemphasize sugar or to deny it. It is an agreeable accompaniment to the cereal, to all the fruits (unless already sweetened) and to all desserts. Eating a sweet food at the end of the lunch and dinner meal makes them more satisfying.

No reason why your boy cannot have bread in some form other than white bread. Try rye bread, rice muffins or corn bread (if corn is not one of his allergies). Ask at your medical or regular library for a book on "Elimination Diets." Or, books on eczema will often substitute helpful suggestions for substitute foods. You can read and make notes from these.

Step Savers
Keep the box of matches close to the stove. Don't cross the kitchen 20 times a day just for a match.

Make a pile of the articles to be carried upstairs each morning on the chair nearest the foot of the stairs. Then they can all go up together.

Rustic furniture with the bark still on is mighty hard on stockings. It is much less apt to do damage if given a coat of clear varnish.

How Tom Dewey Got a Boost Up

NEW YORK—Somewhere in Hollywood is a disbarred New York lawyer who is following the Presidential campaigns with deep interest. He can't vote, because he was convicted of a felony; and he doesn't expect a pardon, because the crime of which he was convicted is a State and not a Federal offense, and Governor Dewey has given no indication that he would approve the application for a pardon. It is to this ex-lawyer that Thomas E. Dewey owes his present eminence and the national reputation which twice have brought him the Republican nomination for the Presidency of the United States.

It began in a Manhattan court-house where the young lawyer, who had won scholarships to Syracuse University and Brooklyn Law School, appeared to file some documents in a civil suit. He had some time to spare, and went downstairs to the Magistrate's Court to observe the routine hearings. A stranger approached, asked him, "You lawyer?" and gave him $15. The lawyer earned his fee—the equivalent of his weekly salary—by asking the arresting officer a few questions and winning an acquittal. It was a policy case, and it represented easy money to the young lawyer. He took a second case, also for $15, quit his job with the law firm specializing in commercial cases, and soon he was earning $300 a week.

His reputation as the foremost numbers-racket lawyer in Manhattan was brought to the attention of the racket operators. He was invited to an uptown speakeasy to meet Dutch Schultz, who ran the numbers racket. Schultz offered him $500 a week to work as a mouthpiece, and he took it. And when the young District Attorney Dewey indicted the mob, including its political protector, Jimmy Hines; and its lawyer, Dixie Davis, it was Davis who turned State's evidence and supplied Dewey with all the links and the evidence he needed.

And from the conviction of Hines was born the Presidential boom for Dewey. And the disbarred lawyer who made all this possible, Dixie Davis, is now selling ice cream in Hollywood.

Dore Schary's contract with the MGM studios is for 15 years. The only dissenting notice Laurence Olivier's "Hamlet" will come from Arthur Hopkins, the veteran producer. In the next issue of Theater Arts magazine, Hopkins, who presented John Barrymore in "Hamlet," will offer his opinion that Barrymore's "Hamlet" was the better one.

Princess Margaret suffered an attack of fibrositis a few days ago. Dr. W. E. Tucker, the last manipulative surgeon in London, is the Princess's doctor. He's been overworked the past few weeks with his own practice and that of Sir Morton Smart, who is vacationing in America.

Dr. Tucker, therefore, was unable to go to Buckingham Palace to attend the Princess. And so every day, for a full week, Princess Margaret took her turn, waiting for the other patients in the Grosvenor Square consulting rooms of Dr. Tucker.

The Casino at Cannes is doing little business this season. A few days ago its only customers were Darryl Zanuck, Jack Warner and Charles Feldman, the agent-producer. The three men from Hollywood stationed themselves at the chemin-de-fer table and played against each other, the 5 per cent edge which the winners had to pay the Casino kept the gambling establishment alive.

A novelist who was a victim of the current economy wave in Hollywood prepared to return to New York. He met Harry Kurnitz, who has a long-term contract at Warner Bros., and suggested that Kurnitz, too, should return to New York and resume his career as a writer of books. "How could anyone with artistic feelings remain in a place which stifles his cultural impulses?" asked the novelist. "How?" I'll tell you how," replied the $3,500-a-week Kurnitz. "I do not feel that my impulses are stifled as long as they pay me enough to buy a Brague or a Modigliani each week."

Whenever Sylvia Porter, the financial columnist, is asked the standard question: "Confidentially, what's your prediction about the stock market?" her standard reply is: "Take my word for it—the market will fluctuate."

Reds Seen Hard Up in Uranium

By Drew Pearson

Most encouraging sign on the atomic-energy horizon is what the Russians are now doing in Saxony. Low grade uranium deposits are found in this southern German state, and the Russians have been working feverishly to mine them. They have been using a great deal of labor, and going to great lengths to scrape up this uranium, which is so low grade that in Canada it would be ignored. The fact that the Russians are taking all this trouble over such poor quality uranium in Germany obviously means only one thing: They don't have any worthwhile uranium of their own in Russia.

"Cordell Hull, Jr."

Tennessee's easy-talking, hard-fighting Congressman, Estes Kefauver, wore a coonskin cap in stumping the State against Boss Ed Crump's political machine. "My coonskin may have three rings around its tail," he told Tennesseans, "but it doesn't have a ring through its nose." Kefauver, who looks and acts like Cordell Hull in his younger days, is staking his forthright record in Congress against Boss Crump's machine in a three-cornered showdown fight over Tom Stewart's Senate seat. Both Crump and Stewart, obviously worried, have gone to the extreme length of trying to turn racial prejudice against Kefauver by calling him a foreigner. Crump has been buying full-page newspaper ads, smearing Kefauver as a foreigner and therefore un-American. At the same time J. J. Walker of McMinnville, Tenn., prominent lumberman, has been acting as Stewart's multiphase in spreading the same charge.

Note: Actually, Kefauver was born in Monroe County, Tenn., near Madisonville.

Inside GOP Caucus

Gauging their own long-windedness, Republican Senators scheduled the Senate to start one hour late the other day. They wanted to decide what they should do about Harry Truman's challenge of a special session. They were right in their estimate—their verbal free-for-all lasted all morning. Only the sound of muffled voices leaked through the ponderous doors, but here is a play-by-play account of what happened inside the GOP meeting. Speaking for the high command, Senator Bob Taft made it clear that the decision to keep Congress in special session long enough to pass on "emergency measures" had been dictated to their new Republican leader, Tom Dewey. Taft said he had been in constant touch with Dewey, both by telephone and through his Washington-based campaign manager, Herb Brownell. Taft quoted Dewey as saying it would be a "grave mistake" to adjourn immediately. Then Taft added his own opinion that Congress should remain in session about two more weeks. This brought sharp disagreement from Wyoming's Ed Robertson, Indiana's Bill Jenner and Nevada's George Malone. Robertson called for immediate adjournment, suggested they reconvene after November. (He faces the fight of his life from Wyoming's Governor Hunt.) Taft replied the idea of a special Republican session of Congress, called by the Republicans, already had strong support from the GOP leadership. Malone had nothing to say about a post-election session, but he begged to go home now. Once an amateur pugilist, he gave the Senators the benefit of his experience in the ring. "Truman is in the position now of a fighter who is knocked flat on his back in the tenth round," warned the Nevada. "He has got nothing to lose if he comes up swinging wildly. But it is a mistake for us to stick our chin out."

"Rubber Stamps"

Massachusetts' Henry Cabot Lodge criticized Taft's Policy Committee for releasing a statement to the press before consulting with the rest of the Senators. Firecracker-tongued Charles Tobey of New Hampshire agreed. He said it made the caucus look like a rubber stamp. Usually brusque Gene Milliken of Colorado tried to smooth over the discord, suggested the release was given as the view of the committee—not of the full caucus. Acting majority leader Ken Wherry chimed in with the ex-

I Am So Sorry

When I go down the yesterday . . . In all sincerity . . . I am crying because of me . . . I wish that I could hold your hand . . . And gaze into your eyes . . . And somehow make you understand . . . How much I sympathize . . . I wish I had not walked away . . . Or ever hurt your heart . . . And there had never dawned a day . . . For us to grow apart . . . But now I know the skies that glow . . . Are never meant to last . . . And even all the winds that blow . . . Can never change the past . . . And now I wish that you could see . . . How deeply I regret . . . The tears you cried because of me . . . That I cannot forget.

THIS WEEK THE HECHT COMPANY SALUTES THE U. S.

Department of Justice and its people who act as counsel to the United States Government

Legal counsel to Uncle Sam . . . enforcement officer of the many thousands of laws passed by Congress every session . . . the United States Department of Justice, comprising twenty-four thousand people spread from coast to coast, is one of the most important departments of our government. There are many facets to the Justice Department's work . . . ranging from a prosecution for an infringement of a Federal law to the naturalization of a foreign-born citizen. Their work demands many types of people with countless talents and skills. The body of laws which governs our lives and our country has been built over a long period of time. Based on the Constitution . . . and embodying the inalienable rights of free men . . . they make for a way of life unique in the whole world. The people of the Department of Justice are responsible for the enforcement of these laws . . . the fundamental laws of our Democracy. There is a moral duty of the gravest weight . . . acting, as it does, upon the lives of millions of individual Americans. The Hecht Company takes pleasure in saluting the thousands of its friends and neighbors of the Department of Justice . . . whose work is such an important cog in the operation of our great Democracy.

All of the material contained herein has been secured from the U. S. Department of Justice and the Library of Congress.

● THE DEPARTMENT OF JUSTICE . . . is the largest law office in the world. The Attorney General is the government's chief legal adviser . . . the United States is his client . . . and the more than twenty-four thousand people serving throughout our nation and territories comprise his staff.

● THE DEPARTMENT OF JUSTICE . . . came into being in 1870. Prior to that time, the Attorney General was a member of the President's Cabinet, but not the head of a department. The first Attorney General . . . Edmund Randolph, of Virginia . . . was paid a salary of $1,500 a year, from which he had to furnish his own quarters, provide fuel and stationery, and employ his own assistants.

● THE DEPARTMENT OF JUSTICE . . . maintains a modern, well-equipped Main Library of more than eighty thousand titles . . . as well as ten division libraries containing forty-five thousand volumes. This tremendous collection of legal material assists attorneys, other officials and employees of the Department in the preparation of their legal memoranda and briefs.

● THE DEPARTMENT OF JUSTICE . . . has jurisdiction over the Immigration and Naturalization Service, which formerly was a part of the Department of Labor. During the years 1942-1945 . . . well over a million persons of foreign birth became citizens of the United States . . . many of whom began life anew after their homelands were overrun during World War II.

● THE DEPARTMENT OF JUSTICE . . . through its long and eventful history, has had many homes . . . a number of temporary quarters, long since demolished . . . the old Freedmen's Bank Building . . . offices in the Treasury Building . . . the old Baltic Hotel on K Street . . . and finally, since 1934, the magnificent new Department of Justice Building, covering an entire city block, in the heart of the Federal Triangle.
